OUR 74TH YEAR, NO. 16 — April 21, 1988

Eastwood's final day

Grace, White, Wright take the oath of office

By DAVID LELAND

THE WORLD'S most unusual soundstage closed up shop this week, as Clint Eastwood passed on his mayoral role to Jean Grace during a brief 20-minute ceremony at city hall.

The former mayor appeared relaxed and happy as he stepped down from the rigors of city business, while Grace showed an enthusiasm fitting to a newly elected official.

'This town has taken justifiable pride in being served and represented by a person who has certainly no need to seek the limelight. He has made it clear to the whole world that he does genuinely appreciate the small-town residential atmosphere.'

— Jean Grace

"All right, quiet," growled a good-natured Eastwood as he began the special Carmel City Council meeting with 110 residents and members of the press jammed into the council chambers. An additional 100 spectators stood outside waiting for a final glimpse of the famous ex-mayor.

After the meeting, it was clear that Eastwood had no desire to answer further questions from the press. "Hey, when it's over, it's over," he quipped, when asked if he had any more comments.

Indeed, Tuesday's taking of the oath of office for Grace and councilmembers Jim Wright and Ken White centered mainly on notes of appreciation for Eastwood and former councilman Bob Evans, who stepped down after serving about 1½ years on the council.

The first order of business was a resolution of appreciation for his support on the redesign of the Hatton Canyon Freeway project, from Assemblyman Sam Farr, represented by Fred Keely, chief of staff.

Then Bob Franco, mayor of Del Rey Oaks, presented Eastwood with the honor of being honorary vice-chairman of the Mayor's Select Committee in "perpetuity."

"He'll always be remembered for his refreshing, regular-guy attitude," he said of Eastwood. "He was a leader and a great supporter. He will always be welcome at our meetings."

Eastwood and Evans were also given a quiet send-off from the city staff.

Doug Schmitz, city administrator, praised Evans for his work in city government, saying that he had the ability to discuss public issues in a "gentlemanly fashion."

He then presented Evans with "the hottest selling item in the city" — a one-year subscription to the city council agenda.

Schmitz also gave Evans a small Monterey pine tree, signifying that he had "planted something that will grow in the municipal organization beyond today."

Schmitz then gave Eastwood a "resident's pass" — a wooden paddle with a nail sticking out of the end.

"I guess I can still swing this from out in the audience," said Eastwood, holding the gift that served as a reminder of the joking suggestion he made early in his administration on a way he could regulate the number of people attending council meetings. "I hope the participation continues in the future."

GRACE ALSO heaped accolades upon the former mayor.

"It's a great privilege to follow into office a friend and fellow citizen who has served our community for two years with much patience, good humor and hard work," she said. "His tenacity on certain issues for the betterment of Carmel-by-the Sea is well known by us and envied by other communities."

Grace also praised Eastwood for splitting his time between his movie-making business and small-town politics.

"This town has taken justifiable pride in being served and represented by a person who has certainly no need to seek the limelight," she said. "He has made it clear to the whole world that he does genuinely appreciate the small-town residential atmosphere."

Grace also said the town should be proud that Evans served the city.

"Now here is a man who not only doesn't need to seek the limelight, but who positively shuns it!, she said. "Bob has served on nearly every committee and commission in the city of Carmel over a period of many years."

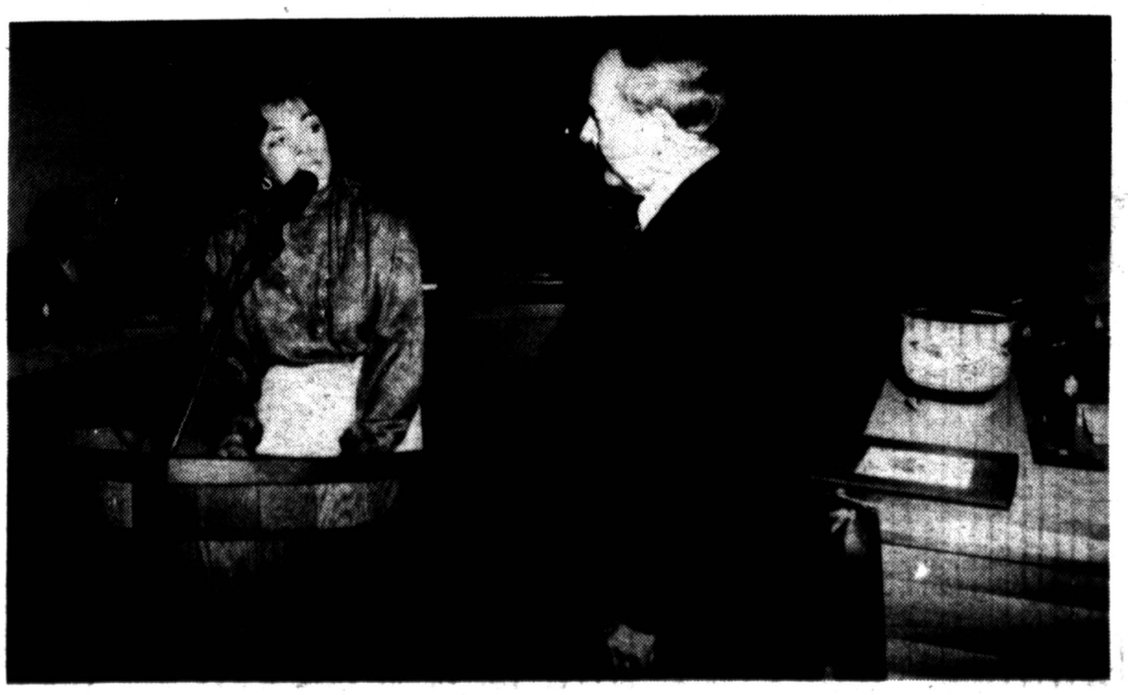
She added that she will attempt to continue this tradition during her two-year term as mayor.

"As I took this oath of office I was silently taking another oath," she said. "The Hypocratic oath taken by physicians — one that is so difficult to fulfil yet must be a consideration in all we do or don't do. That is, the attempt to, above all, do no harm — I love this place."

FORMER MAYOR Clint Eastwood was all smiles as he congratulated new Mayor Jean Grace after she was sworn into office during Tuesday's city council meeting. (Gregg Wutke photos.)

NEW CARMEL Mayor Jean Grace recites the oath of office as prompted by Jeanne Brehemer, city clerk, during ceremonies held Tuesday at city hall.

CARMEL COUNCILMAN Jim Wright shakes Jeanne Brehmer's hand after being sworn in Tuesday after being re-elected to a second four-year term.



KEN WHITE was sworn in by Jeanne Brehmer, city clerk, during Tuesday's meeting to begin serving his four-year term as Carmel City Councilman.

Road hogs

Dear Editor:

I face the same feeling of dread that is in the minds of many "tourists" and Carmelites alike year-round: braving yet another day in Carmel traffic.

All the cars racing by seem to have Carmel license plates. The car I saw cutting across three lanes of traffic to make a U-turn had Carmel plates. So did the truck that drove up on the sidewalk to get around a traffic jam (ironically, but not suprisingly, caused by an accident). All those sporty little cars that cut in front of me with 2 feet of clearance have Carmel plates and Monterey Peninsula license frames. And of course, there's all those vehicles playing the squeeze-through-on-a-yellow-arrow game, they all seem to have Carmel plates, too. And what about those reptiles on wheels, the "tailgators," they certainly aren't an endangered species around here.

I quite agree the tourists should learn the rules of the Carmel road before attempting to drive here. And to help them out, here's a few suggestions:

•Disconnect your turn signals. No one uses them here anyway.

•Nail your gas pedal to the floor. This will prevent you from slowing down the natives and possibly getting a ticket for "impeding the normal flow of traffic."

•Remove your rear-view mirror. What's behind you isn't important.

•Treat all speed-limit signs as "minimum."

•Buy some dark sunglasses. Not only will they prevent you from seeing traffic lights change and limit your night vision, but they'll help you look just like a Carmelite.

Carmelites, when you drive all over the country, please be courteous and careful while you are visiting other cities and towns. Or perhaps you will start seeing "Carmelite Go Home" bumper sticker on cars everywhere.

Who cares anyway?

Dear Editor:

I had the fortunate or unfortunate experience of watching two people who appeared to be employees of La Playa Hotel, of the city of Carmel, bend and trample down a row of fencing which had been put up by the county to stop beachgoers from climbing up and down the eroding cliffs adjoining Scenic Road at the hairpin turn at Carmel Point, after having parked their La Play Hotel labeled pick-up truck illegally on the roadway of this county area of Carmel.

Preparations were obviously being made for what was to be a La Playa Hotel-sponsored beach party (probably legal, with permit granted by the park rangers at Point Lobos). No rangers, were however, in attendance, and it was easier to trample down county property to dump a whole truckload of firewood down the cliffs to the beach, than to haul it by hand to the rocky location which they had chosen for their guests.

Having over the years seen fence after fence replaced and repeated shoring-up and replanting of the cliff at this location, I was shocked to find vandalism happening again, and this time by a local commercial establishment of the city of Carmel (which won't, incidently, issue permits for these commercial beach parties on the city of Carmel beach!).

I questioned these young men as to the reason for this abuse of county property, and they said that they had to get the firewood down to that location someway. I went directly to a nearby neighbor's home, and telephoned the sheriff's department, advising them of this abuse. They agreed to investigate. My neighbor then called the rangers at Point Lobos and she was informed that a permit had been issued for that event. There was however no ranger supervision. They also agreed to investigate.

By the time this reporting was completed, about a cord of firewood had been dumped down the cliff and the fence had been bent back to a somewhat upright position.

No one finds fault with normal use of the public beaches, but this particular little beach area which has a very appropriate stairway leading to it, is constantly allowed to be abused. I never saw the ranger who was going to investigate. I did see the sheriff's department investigate. They advised me by phone that there was certainly no problem and that if the fence had been trampled down, it was certainly in good order now...seemingly inferring to me that I should not have called in the first place. So, the abuse goes on.

The fence is again flattened down, the plantings further destroyed, the cliffs continue eroding, and it seems to me that no one in authority is very responsive to protecting these taxpayer supported safeguards to preserve this area of this beautiful coastline.

Why be concerned, why file complaints, why have respect for public property...who cares anyway?

Half a freeway

Dear Editor:

Half a freeway is better than one.

The Caltrans four-lane Hatton Canyon Freeway creates more problems (traffic and environmental), than it solves. A two-lane northbound freeway in Hatton Canyon can relieve the Carmel area traffic problem with the least environmental impact.

A one-way, two-lane northbound freeway through Hatton Canyon, with an underpass at Carmel Valley Road, underpass or overpass at Rio Road and a second Carmel River bridge, would eliminate the need for a four-lane freeway.

Simply converting Highway 1 to two lanes southbound from Ocean Avenue to Carmel Valley Roal could accommodate southbound traffic. Why direct southbound traffic through Hatton Canyon, past the established commercial areas, toward Carmel Highlands and two-lane scenic Highway 1? Most of the Highway 1 southbound traffic has Carmel, the commerical areas or Carmel Valley as a destination.

A two-lane northbound freeway through Hatton Canyon would:

1. Relieve the backup from the Mouth of the Valley to Carmel HIghlands caused by the Carmel River Bridge bottleneck, the Rio Road stoplights and the traffic conflict at Carmel Valley Road.

2. Remove the conflict at the Highway 1/Carmel Valley Road intersection where southbound traffic cannot turn left onto Carmel Valley Road until there is a break in northbound traffic.

It should be possible to obtain funding for

Closing a chapter

THE TWO-YEAR term of Carmel's 25th and most celebrated mayor came to a relatively quiet end Tuesday.

Quiet, that is, compared to the excitement, hype and hoopla of two years ago, when the world's top box office attraction decided unexpectedly (at least to most people), to toss his Stetson into the ring, throwing the city and the city's election into a near tizzy.

After a two-month campaign awash in tea parties, grumblings of voter irregularities and a media feeding frenzy, Clint Eastwood was elected mayor of Carmel-by-the-Sea.

The frenzy continued for a few months after the election and council meetings were moved to larger quarters, but after that it was business as usual.

But it wasn't exactly the usual business. The city council had suddenly taken on an entirely new makeup. With the death of longtime city council member Helen Arnold several months later, the look — and the outlook — changed even more dramatically.

At the helm of this particular ship was Eastwood, who vowed to bring a sense of openness and cooperation and — perhaps ironically — accessibility to the city. Openness and cooperation not only between the residents and the business community, but between residents and business community and the city; and accessibility of the residents to the city's various government entities. Eastwood proved that a mayor need not camp out in city hall to be effective and receptive to residents' needs. More importantly, Eastwood's forceful leadership, good humor and fairness as "chairman" of the city council brought a needed spirit and open-mindedness to the council.

We didn't always agree with all of his methods or decisions and some of his actions drew the ire of a — albeit small — group of residents, but his actions also tended to spur healthy debate and consideration. The city's revised general plan wouldn't be where it is now — one pretty much agreeable to everyone — without that type of scrutiny and deliberation.

Even his detractors have to acknowledge his positive accomplishments while in office. The purchase of Mission Ranch to save it from massive development comes immediately to mind, but he did that as a private citizen, not mayor. As mayor he was able to move along to completion such projects as the beach walkway, restrooms at Devendorf Park, and a

No regrets

WAS IT worth it spending all that time, energy and money to run for mayor? You bet! It was fun, exciting and rewarding.

The campaign was a concentrated crash course in politics. In many ways it was not unlike combat. I quickly learned whom I could rely on, whom I could trust, who could get the job done.

I now feel well versed in Carmel — its problems, its people. Going from door to door was an especially rewarding experience as I got to talk with people in their homes about issues that concern them. The cordial reception was impressive. Time after time I heard, "Come in — want a cup of coffee?" or "Thank you for coming by," or "Thank you for running." Where else would people thank you for knocking on their doors, bothering them about water, open space and parking? The conclusion must be drawn that the people of Carmel are civilized, warm human beings who care about their village.

The dedication and devotion of our volunteers was an inspiration. They were an intelligent, hard-working, honest group who played by the rules. I never had to look back over my shoulder to see if they were doing the right thing. The greatest campaign benefit of all was working with and becoming close to these splendid people — many old friends, but some I had not been fortunate enough to know well before.

To these supporters and to all of you who gave me financial help and your votes, I am eternally grateful. The many contributions of $5, $10 or $15 from those who could not

Jean Grace looking forward to next two years

By NANCY HILLS

IT'S "MADAME Mayor" for the next two years now that newly elected and eager-to-start Jean Grace has officially taken over the gavel.

Grace was choosen April 12 by Carmel voters to represent them the next two years and help to set city policies and solve city problems.

A 10-year Carmel resident, she won her seat with a 276-vote lead over her nearest rival, Clayton Anderson, a count she said represents a "good margin," but added, "I don't go in for that mandate stuff.

"I was very pleased with the results, especially since I wasn't even sure we would win," she said. "I'm very grateful to my supporters. I love this place and I'm going to try to do what's best for it."

Grace said it is difficult to interpret the vote spread over both the mayor's and council race, which reinstated incumbent councilman James Wright and elected planning commission chairman Ken White to the council.

"It's very difficult to say where the balance lies," she said. "The press wanted to draw a line between pro-resident and pro-business. I believe all the candidates were pro-resident. However, in my position, I may have a deeper understanding of the vicissitudes of the business community."

That understanding in no way makes her put the the needs of the business community ahead of the residents, she added.

"One of the reasons I want a parking garage at Sunset Center is to get the (commercial district) cars out of the residential neighbohoods," Grace said.

That residential stance in one shared by all the councilmembers, she said

"I think we all have the same goals. It's just how we accomplish them," Grace said.

One of her greatest concerns, she said, is maintaining continuity of the various city commissions, committees and boards.

"One of the important things I see facing us is a smooth transition of the commissions. I would like to see everyone stay on," she said.

However, as always in city government, she already has to search for replacements for planning commissioners Ken White and Howard Nieman and cultural commissioner Jean White (Ken White's wife).

Nieman has announced his resignation, effective May 25 and Jean White's is effective immediately.

Two other commissioners' terms, those of Fred Keeble and Carla Ramsey, expire in May, but neither have announced whether they will seek reappointment.

To fill the known vacancies and other inevitable leave-takings, Grace said she wants to encourage everyone who is interested to put in an application for the position they are interested in.

"I think a lot of people don't know that applications are kept on file even if they don't get the position the first time around," she pointed out.

Public participation and openness, goodwill and good humor in city government and at city council meetings are top priorities for her, she said.

AS CARMEL'S newest mayor, Grace feels she brings to the job a long history of working in city government and a good environmental background, not only her work with the city but as a field representative for the Monterey Bay Air Pollution Control District and her degree as a coastal geographer.

"I believe that I have a more of a background in environmental issues than almost anyone on the council," she said.

One outgrowth of that training is her interest in a sewage water reclamation plant for the peninsula.

In fact, one of the first meetings she attended when she moved to the area was a meeting on reclamation, she said.

Carmel can encourage the proposed Carmel Sanitary District plant, Grace added, by being flexible about the allocation of water coming from the project, Grace said.

"Carmel can help it along by being cooperative about the actual water allocation it will provide," she said. "We, of course, need to keep on top of whatever is happening at the Monterey Peninsula Water Mangement District. I hope the people who have been active in the water issue will remain so."

Those people include Councilwoman Elinor Laiolo, former Mayor Clint Eastwood, Alan Williams and others, she said.

She added that the 100 acre feet from the water management district was a good thing for the city. The city's original allocation had been unfair and deficient.

Other ongoing issues she hopes to resolve are Mission Trail Park and Flanders Mansion.

"I think we need to give the consortium (which is working on uses for the mansion), the time needed to to try and come up with a use for it," she said.

The council had planned to review the issue in November.

"I would like to go on record stating that to sell it is not in conformance with the general plan," she said.

If it is legal, Grace said she is interested in bringing that issue of conformity with the general plan back to the council and get that settled.

"I would like to find that it is not in conformity with the general plan to sell it and just put that to rest," she said.

Another issue that is a natural outgrowth of her background as a coastal geographer is the annexation of Carmel's sphere of influence, she said.

"I very, very much want to encourage people who live in the sphere of influence to look into annexation to the city," she said.

Only if the sphere of influence residents initiate it, Grace added, is it appropriate and legal.

For Carmel, the addition of the entirely residential Hatton Fields/Mission Trail Park areas, Carmel Point and Carmel Woods, would help to balance residential and commercial districts, she said.

"Carmel would gain a much richer pool of residents and it would improve the ratio of commercial area to the residential area," she said.

OF COURSE, Grace said, the primary problems in Carmel remain "parking, traffic and parking."

It is an appropriate priority, because a parking district is one of the first items the new council will have to deal with.

The planning commission April 13 unanimously approved a resolution that requests the city council investigate and develop a plan for a citywide parking district. That resolution will go to the council soon, probably in May.

"I would support a parking district or comprehensive, symbiotic plan which includes a parking facility at Sunset Center along with a residential parking sticker program," she said.

Grace has also expressed an interest in a small parking garage at city property on Sixth Avenue and Lincoln Street in conjunction with the Pine Inn and underground tour bus parking at the Handley property.

Grace said she had not had an introduction into the confidential negotiations on the Handley property, and could not comment on its acquisition. However, she stated during her campaign that she hopes the city will be able to purchase the site.

Grace said she did not see any major changes in the way the city budget is set up, but added later that the acquistition of additional open space should not be at the expense of the city's capital improvements programs.

Other issues that are special to her include:

• Facilitating pedestrian access in Carmel.

While not in favor of sidewalks in areas where walking along the street is dangerous, Grace said perhaps some kind of rustic pathway program would be feasible.

• Approval of the second-story ordinance reviewed by the council during its last meeting. The ordinance implements stricter setback requirements, floor area ratios, building site coverage and incentives for village atmosphere items like pathways and courtyards.

Grace said she supports the ordinance but would like to see service businesses continue to be allowed on second stories — no new retail, however.

Because rents are so high on the first floor, Grace said she is concerned that service businesses, such as offices, will be squeezed out of Carmel if they cannot locate on second stories.

• More informational brochures from city hall on its workings and other pertinent subjects.

Nieman resigns commission, cites personal reasons

ONE OF the first challenges for newly elected Mayor Jean Grace will be to replace Carmel Planning Commissioner Howard Nieman, Jr. who has announced he will resign from the planning commission effective May 25.

Nieman, who came in third in the city council race for two seats April 12, explained that his decision to step down was based on personal reasons.

He ran for council, he said, because it offered a "new and interesting challenge," but the change in administration offers him an opportunity to pursue other interests.

"The planning commission deals exclusively with planning issues, while the city council deals with a whole host of problems," he said.

His decision, he said, was in no way affected by the election of Grace.

"My decision was made before the election day. I wish Jean nothing but the best and I hope she has a very successful administration," Nieman said. "I feel that I have made a contribution to the city and planning commission and it is time for me to step down."

He will stay until the end of May, he said, to allow Grace the time to find a replacement and because planning commissioner Ed Hicks is on vacation. With Chairman Ken White elected to the council, it would leave too many vacancies for the commission to vote on some issues.

Nieman was appointed to the commission by former mayor Clint Eastwood in June 1987 to replace Bruce Roberts, who had resigned. At the time, Nieman was primarily known for his opposition to the proposed general plan revisions. Viewed at the time as one of the administration's critics, the nomination was a surprise to many.

Nieman said of the time he spent on the commission he is proudest of his input on the revisions to the general plan. He also cites holding the line on commercial intensification and trying to maintain the residential district's ambience through design review as high on his list.

Since being on the commission, Nieman said he has found "the single most difficult problem is that the community is unable to agree now to maintain the type of community that they want to keep.

"The result is that the planning commission often voted against projects because they (the projects) did not meet our existing standards. Later, when appealed to the city council, the council often voted to overturn the planning commission's decisions based upon political considerations rather the upholding city ordinances."

Political decision-making, he said, "results in unfair and unequal treatment of applicants and in the long run, the community suffers when exceptions are continiously found to satisfy a particular applicant."

Nieman praised the work of the commission stating that "I think I can say that in my time on the planning commission, I found the other commissioners had a sincere concern for the good of the city and dedicated much unsung time to maintaining Carmel as they understood the people of this city wanted it maintained. I believe the commission has done an excellent job."

Los Padres Forest plan receives high marks

By DAVID LELAND

BIG SUR residents and county officials expressed approval this week for a final draft management plan which would govern the Los Padres National Forest.

If adopted, the plan will provide federal management direction and land uses for the 1.75 million-acre forest for the next 10 to 15 years, with an annual budget of $18.5 million.

"They're trying to be good neighbors rather than the all-powerful agency in federalization," said Jim Josoff, chairman of Friends of the Big Sur Coast.

Josoff referred to the confrontation between local agencies and Sen. Pete Wilson about two years ago, when Wilson attempted to increase the federal presence in the forest, which stretches from Los Angeles County north to Carmel Valley and occupies 2,756 square miles, by introducing federal legislation.

At that time locals questioned why the federal forest could not fall under the auspices of the local coastal plan, which calls for strict environmental controls over the land.

Both 5th District Supervisor Karin Strasser Kauffman and Josoff now claim that that is exactly what the new plan appears to do.

"This is precisely what we've all been after," Strasser Kauffman said. "The local coastal plan (adopted last fall by the state Coastal Commission), will be the guiding light."

Strasser Kauffman heaped accolades upon the U.S. Forest Service, which has worked closely with the Big Sur Multi-Agency Advisory Council. All along, she said, the forest service has promised to take the council's desires into consideration.

The advisory council is a consortium of federal, state and county officials which is joined by Big Sur residents. The group meets quarterly and is chaired by Rep. Leon Panetta.

"It's great to see it in writing, rather than have to hope." she said, adding that Wilson's bill made the management of the forest much tougher than need be. "This (draft plan) is a much more practical way of achieving our goal."

While Wilson had threatened to reintroduce legislation governing Los Padres Forest, thus far he has concentrated on other issues.

"He does not plan to (reintroduce) right now," said Linda Royster, aide to Wilson, adding that Wilson supports a state park and wildlife bond initiative (Proposition 70) on the June ballot which would release funds for acquisition of land in critical viewshed. "He's put off any other plan in that area until he's seen how the ballot initiative goes."

The bond issue has $25 million earmarked for Monterey County with which to buy land in the critical viewshed on the Big Sur coast.

Royster added that Wilson has not viewed the Los Padres plan, and will peruse the document along with the other 17 federal parks within the state that are up for Congressional approval.

"Because of the workload we are going to look at them all at once," she said. "Congress will consider them en masse."

SPECIFICALLY, THE draft plan addresses several key issues within management sections 42 and 48, which is comprised of approximately 55,500 acres along Highway 1 and the adjoining forest area.

For example, the draft plan recommends a continued relationship between the forest service, state Coastal Commission and the Big Sur advisory council in an effort to follow the local coastal plan.

"The land use and resource policies of the Big Sur Local Coastal Program are used as a standard for agency consistency determinations," the draft states. "The Forest Supervisor is a participant on the Big Sur Multi-Agency Advisory Council."

Josoff was elated with that approach, saying, "The local coastal plan will be the standard agreement under which forest activities are judged."

Under Wilson's legislation, the federal government would have had the power to force private property owners to sell their land and would have rid the forest of inholdings.

The new plan reads that a person has to be a "willing seller" in order to purchase land and also states that the forest management will, "Encourage continuation of the social and cultural values of the Big Sur Community by not pursuing a policy of extinguishing inholdings within the area except when the owners desire to sell."

An inholding is a parcel of private property that is surrounded by land owned by the federal government.

"One of the scary things about having land in a state forest is they have always wanted to extinguish inholders," said Josoff, referring to the idea that the government could force you to take "fair market value" for your property at any time against your will.

The draft plan, Strasser Kauffman said, combines the best of both worlds for the forest.

"I've always said that we need to balance property rights with environmental concerns," Strasser Kauffman said. "The county is very, very pleased."

OTHER KEY elements included in the draft plan for the Los Padres Forest include:

• A measure supporting the "maintenance and enhancement" of Highway 1 as a two-lane scenic highway.

The draft plan also calls for enhancing opportunities for viewing the scenery.

• Recommends that all land in the forest area be withdrawn from mineral, oil and gas leases.

The plan also concurs with a Supreme Court ruling that requires Granite Rock mining company to prepare an environmental impact report before any further mining is allowed.

• A provision that increases the "prescribed burning" program in the forest from 8,000 to 25,000 acres a year, which is aimed at reducing the frequency of wildfires and enhancing watershed and wildlife habitat.

The only part of the plan that Strasser Kauffman could find fault with will be rectified by the Montery County Board of Supervisors, she said.

That concerns the Little Sur River, which she said should be maintained in a "wild and scenic" status."

The final draft of the forest plan is available at the Harrison Memorial Library in Carmel and county library branches in both Carmel Valley and Big Sur.

Respect Life benefit auction slated for May 6

THE MONTEREY Catholic Diocese Respect Life Commission will host an auction for its first fund-raising event Friday, May 6, in the ballroom of the Inn at Spanish Bay.

The commission is currently soliciting items to be included in the auction, and assures donors that proceeds from the bidding will go to the Respect Life Commission to support its work of education, service, and public policy relating to life issues.

"The committee is creating an evening for those individuals who believe in the dignity of human life and want to affirm it from the womb to the tomb," said George Ivancovich, auction chairman. "We are all looking forward to the happy occasion and the opportunity to build up the human family as we stand up in our society and make a statement about the value of life."

Auction items need to be received by Monday, April 25. For further information on donations contact Bruna Odello at 624-2246.

senior citizens complex now run by a Carmel-based organization. His negotiations brought the city a new library annex at an "affordable" price and his determination, more water for the city. Even ice cream cones, the bane of the previous council, have found a small niche in the city's unique character. The Carmel Youth Center is once again a vibrant and viable entity and the Clint Eastwood Youth Program drug recovery center recently "graduated" its first youths and probably wouldn't exist without his help.

As we go forward with the new administration we need to look back over the past two years and acknowledge a few things. Clint Eastwood didn't need to be mayor of Carmel. He didn't need the money ($200 a month!), the recognition, the prestige (such as it is), the power and certainly not the hassles and frustrations of the position. He didn't even need the position to get his building built, as some have charged. It was approved before he even ran for the office. Did he do it on a whim or simply for a challenge? Hardly.

What does that leave? Maybe, just maybe, he did it because he truly cares about the city he calls home, that he felt he had something to offer, that he could make a lasting contribution, make a difference, and that that difference would be good and positive. Is that so hard to believe?

As we close this particular chapter in Carmel's history, we can say this about the last two years, it's been exciting, controversial, complicated, exhilarating, frustrating, enlightening, and hopeful. Sounds just like life doesn't it?

Thanks, and a tip of the hat to Clint Eastwood and all those who have served the city so well in the past two years.

necessarily afford it touched my heart. That such generosity and expression of faith was not rewarded with a win is my only regret.

I learned a lot about the media and it renewed my faith in the integrity and ability of the on-the-scene newspaper reporters. They knew the situation and were on top of the facts — they were the ones who asked the right questions and therefore provided their readers with a true picture of what was going on.

Seeing the many endorsements and testimony on my behalf was humbling. I had support from old friends I hadn't seen for 20 or 30 years — recalling incidents I didn't remember. When good friends from the past come to your side it makes the world a more comfortable place to live.

Now it's back to normal life — tennis, trimming hedges, reading the Wall Street Journal, walking the beaches and enjoying my regained freedom. Of course, we'll continue to stay active, attend city council meetings and work hard for the things we believe in.

I wish Jean Grace well as she begins her term as mayor and hope that all of us can work together for the betterment of Carmel.

As Heinlein said:

SAAB'S INNOVATIVE TECHNOLOGY AND ENGINEERING PROWESS START AT AROUND $15,000 AND DON'T STOP UNTIL ABOUT $20 MILLION.

The idea of "shared technology" has a long history at Saab. In fact, the first Saab cars weren't even conceived by automotive engineers, they were designed by aircraft engineers. All of which helps explain why Saabs have always been known for their innovative approach. Innovations such as one of the first uses of turbocharging in a standard production car. One of the earliest applications of 16-valve cylinder head technology and front-wheel drive. Dual-diagonal braking. Energy-absorbing, collapsible steering columns. And most recently, the addition of an ABS antilock braking system to all Saab 9000's. But to experience this technology in a far more moving fashion we suggest you visit us soon. Where the entire 1988 model line (unfortunately, minus the supersonic Saab JA-37 Viggen) awaits your inspection.

Music boosters find novel way to raise funds

CUSD MUSIC Boosters have come up with a unique way to raise funds for various school music projects.

A special "Fun Day" is being organized by the boosters for Saturday, May 21, at Carmel Middle School. Activities will begin at noon, highlighted by "Meadow Muffin Monopoly." During this event, some lucky participant will come away $1,000 richer, if the group's cow leaves a "meadow muffin" on the winner's "plot" of land. Plots are being sold by Carmel High School music students for the fund-raising event. The cost of each plot is $5. Entertainment and food will also be available throughout the afternoon.

The Carmel High School Band had been preparing to attend the World Expo in Australia as representatives of United States high schools. However, there was insufficient time to raise the more than $100,000 needed to finance the trip, according to Deidi Kramer, booster publicity person. The group instead has elected to participate in the 1988 International Music Festival in Hawaii this June. Costs are estimated to be approximately $35,000, about one-third of the Australia trip, she said.

The 17-year old festival is sponsored by a non-profit group of nationally prominent musicians from both the professional and educational ranks of music. Carmel High School performers will be participating in a clinic and competition while at the festival, as well as being ranked for medals.

The community's support is needed to ensure the success of the May 21 event and the trip to the International Music Festival, said Kramer. Tickets can be purchased from CHS music students on Saturdays when they man booths at local shopping areas such as Carmel Plaza and The Crossroads.

The winner need not be present on "Meadow Muffin Day" since all "deeds" are recorded on the Music Booster master grid. But the watching and waiting for the momentous event may provide an entertaining time at the Carmel Middle School field.

For more information, please call the music department at Carmel High School, 624-1821, or Booster President Sharen Carey at 624-3652.

Citizens committee on Hatton freeway to be established

FORMATION OF a citizens advisory committee to assist with the aesthetic design of the Hatton Canyon Freeway project was revealed by Tom Pollock, Caltrans district director responsible for the construction.

In making the announcement, Pollock noted that, "This advisory committee will play an important role in helping determine such factors as architectural theme, structural details, landscaping, lighting, and signing for the project. The Carmel area is unique and we at Caltrans appreciate the desire of its citizens to retain its natural beauty.

"It is hoped that the committee will represent a true cross-section of the citizens in the area as well as commercial and residential interests," Pollock said.

Caltrans will be asking the Monterey County Board of Supervisors to select the committee members.

Caltrans expects the advisory committee to hold its first meeting in early June. Top managers from Caltrans headquarters in Sacramento will join district officials in briefing committee members on the status of the project and review the organization and purpose of the committee.

Present plans call for the committee to meet approximately every month to review the project and to present community input regarding architectural features, landscaping, and other aesthetic concerns.

"Caltrans officials will take part in the meetings to monitor input and answer questions," Pollock said.

Earlier this month, Caltrans Director Robert K. Best announced the department's intention to proceed with preferred Alternative 1C, which will provide for grade separations at Carmel Valley and Rio Roads. Acknowledging the concerns of some citizens over the project, it was Caltrans' determination to form the advisory committee to ensure community input, said Pollock.

Unequal treatment

Dear Editor:

In the mail Thursday came an undated letter from California-American Water Co. advising that it proposes to raise residential rates over the next three years by 33.90 percent. This compares with increases of only 14.47 percent for golf courses and 23.01 percent for business. Since when is the welfare of golf courses more important than people? Or, for that matter, for business, which, in this area, is predominantly concerned with the tourist trade that is rapidly using up our diminishing water supplies.

I am submitting my views to the California Public Utilities Commission for a more equitable treatment for residents and hope that many other readers will do likewise.

Radar or entrapment?

Dear Editor:

"Radar" is an electronic device to determine the presence and location of an object by measuring the time for the echo of a radio wave to return from it, and the direction from which it returns. On the other hand, "entrapment." It is defined as to draw into contradiction or damaging admission.

The use of "radar" in the pursuit of moving violations being employed on our streets of Carmel carries a very fine line of "entrapment."

The need to enforce the speed laws in the city of Carmel is equable, it's that fine line that disturbs me. "Radar" and "entrapment" just don't mix.

Brava, Joan!

Dear Editor:

The right to disagree seems to be a lost privilege these days. I refer to the recent verbal attacks on Joan Fontaine, a lady of dignity and compassion, who has been verbally battered because she had the courage to speak her mind.

Most of us who came to this beautiful place from somewhere else find ourselves in the same position as Ms. Fontaine. Where we were was fine for the time we were there, but something made us leave there to come here. Ms. Fontaine left Hollywood; I left New Jersey; people who read this letter came from a number of different places. We all have one thing in common, however. None of us wants this place to become like the places we left behind.

It is natural, then, for Ms. Fontaine to want to see Hollywood stay in Hollywood. I want Hollywood to stay in Hollywood; otherwise, I would have moved there and not here, and I certainly want New Jersey to stay in New Jersey. Why, then, is a gifted woman whose presence graces our area subjected to the bitter, vicious rantings of the few simply because she speaks out on a matter of concern to her?

Despite her considerable prestige in the film industry, Joan Fontaine does not live here just to be admired; rather, she is an integral and active member of our community. She is a life member of SPCA, and a member of many other organizations. I had the personal pleasure of meeting her when she spoke before the Professional Women's Network a few years back...a night, I might add, that none of us who were there will ever forget. Joan Fontaine is a warm, gracious, outgoing, and very real person.

When considering the past, present, or future of the Monterey Film Festival, we would do far better to listen to someone like Ms. Fontaine who knows whereof she speaks than to consider the petty diatribes of those whose only interest in this beautiful area is measured by the size of their bank accounts.

Brava, Joan Fontaine.

Of meese and men

Dear Editor:

The other day I was discussing politics with "Bert," a friend of mine. He brought up the subject of Ed Meese and his problems and how these problems affected the president.

"You're so right," I offered. He's been an albacore around the president's neck for years now."

"An albatross, not albacore."

"Whatever."

"How can the president get Meese to resign," he asked.

"Well, he could fire those weenies on the prosecution team and bring in our own Judge Wapner. If anyone can force "Big Ed" to tell the truth, he can."

Right away he saw the logic in this — then I explained something else.

"The Republicans are smart people. They usually have high foreheads, small eyes, and they always look like they are smelling something. Their one fault is that they don't open their mouths very wide when they speak. George Shultz is the worst. He acts like a ventriloquist; all he needs is a dummy on his knee."

"What did you say — he already has one on his knee?

"You said it, "Bert," I didn't."

McFarland seawall landscaping plan approved

By NANCY HILLS

IT WAS back to the drawing board and the Carmel Planning Commission April 13 for the controversial McFarland seawall, but success finally seems at hand.

The commission unanimously gave conceptual approval to a new landscaping plan for aesthetic improvements to the fiberform — cement bag — seawall on the north end of Carmel Beach. The plan includes planters along the face of the wall and will have to undergo an engineering review for strength and durability.

The commission had previously approved a plan to cover the wall with granite and lower the height by 5 feet, as suggested in an environmental impact report on the project. The entire permit, with the aesthetic changes, should return to the commission on May 7.

The wall's owner, Craig McFarland, objected to lowering the height, stating through attorney Myron Etienne that it would endanger the bluffs and, therefore, his unoccupied home overlooking the beach.

McFarland said he cannot fix the gutted house until the issue of the seawall's repairs and aesthetic improvements are settled.

Those problems have remained unsolved since 1983, when the seawall was built after the severe storms of that year damaged McFarland's cliff as well as city portions of the beach.

In addition to being unsightly, the 220-foot wall needs repairs to 80 feet of its foundation, which was found to sit on sand and gravel rather than sturdier bedrock.

The commission determined that repairs to the wall should follow the dictates of the EIR. Those repairs will place rip-rap at the base of the foundation to hold in the sand and gravel.

The new plans for aesthetic improvements have no effect on structural repairs.

The newest plan, developed by McFarland's landscaper and the commission's design review committee, is to place planters at varied heights and designs along the front of the wall. The planters would be covered with the same granite facing as originally designated for the wall by the commission. The planters would hold native trees and bushes.

Varying the height and design of the planters is intended to give the wall a more natural facade rather than one straight planter across the face of the wall. The commission had rejected the single planter concept as unnatural looking in February.

"I think it will make it more interesting and give a more natural appearance given the differences in height and texture. It will achieve what we are looking for," explained planning commissioner Fred Keeble.

THE CARMEL Planning Commission April 13 gave conceptual approval to aesthetic improvements to the McFarland seawall, located at the north end of Carmel Beach. Owner Craig McFarland submitted plans for granite-covered planters that would vary in height and texture, as shown in this portion of an artist's rendition.

Planning commission meeting April 27

THE CARMEL Planning Commission continues its tasks on April 27, election or no election.

The commission will meet 3:30 p.m. Wednesday, April 27 in Carmel City Council Chambers without Chairman Ken White.

White was elected to the city council April 12 and sworn in on April 19.

For the first meeting under the new administration, the commission is scheduled to:

• Consider the list of the city's planned five-year capital improvements to determine if they are in compliance with the general plan. The capital improvements will then be forwarded to the city council for a budget review in June.

The list includes many items the commission has already ruled upon, such as the acquisition of Crocker Bank building and other city improvements, like repairs to Junipero and Ocean avenues.

• A revised sign ordinance that includes regulation of any interior sign that can be seen from the public right-of-way, and an inventory of menu boards and all signs in the village.

• A master use permit for Del Dono Court. Property owners Ted and Bob Leidig have applied to divide a single two-story space.

The arrogance of sellers

WE WERE recently brought face to face with one of the oldest investment principles by a friend of ours who runs her own real estate firm here on the peninsula.

"And how's business with you?" we asked, after briefly responding to her query about life in the stock market after the Crash of '87.

"Business is good," she said, just a hint of anxiety in her voice.

"You don't sound totally convinced."

"Well, it's too hot in one way these days in real estate. It's a sellers' market. There's too little inventory and too many buyers. It makes the sellers just a little too arrogant for a decent business environment. If rates go up a bit, a lot of buyers will back out and bring some equilibrium back in. Hopefully, the next drop in rates after that will encourage more sellers to list their properties and we'll have a better balance in the market place."

She was talking about supply and demand. It doesn't really matter whether the subject is real estate, stamps and coins, stocks, or precious metals, the rule is the same. Prices go up when supply is less than demand, prices go down when supply is greater than demand.

Most people assume that investments have semi-magical powers and that good investors share the talents of Harry Houdini. Is it possible, however, that good investors are simply those who stay in touch with the supply-demand equation?

What's wrong with the real estate market right now? According to our friend, the supply side is all wrong, not enough inventory being out there to maintain a healthy balance.

What's wrong with the stock market right now? It should be obvious that the demand side is currently too weak to sustain a better environment than we currently see. Call it a Bear Market or a correction or whatever, the stock market lacks buyers.

We repeat: is it possible that good investors are those who stay in touch with the supply-demand equation, buying when the supply is great, selling when the supply is poor? What other meaning can there be to the notion that you should buy low and sell high? Maybe the sellers deserve their arrogance. They bought at the right time, when too many people were selling, degrading the intrinsic value of the property.

Stocks are certainly cheap right now and their intrinsic values have been degraded to such a point that the takeover pirates are scooping up company after company in a series of raids that seem to puzzle the public.

Those arrogant little devils.

(For more information on the arrogance of sellers, Messrs. Bloom and Piazza, associate vice presidents of Dean Witter Reynolds, can be reached at 373-1861).

ONLY TEN MONTEREYANS ELIGIBLE FOR TRAINING

Only ten young men between the ages of 17 and 24 years from Monterey County will have an opportunity to enjoy a month's vacation and training in ideal surroundings July 26th to August 24th at the Citizens' Military Training Camps at Del Monte and Fort Winfield Scott, according to announcement of quotas for the state just made by Col. E.V. Smith, chief of staff, 91st Division, Presidio of San Francisco, California, who is to command this year's camps and to whom inquiries and applications should be sent. Are there any young men in Carmel who wish to attend?

BEACH STREWN WITH BEER CANS: CLEAN-UP TAKES JUST HALF DAY

Carmel was the scene of a party last week culminating into a rather large sized shindig over the week-end.

Joe College arrived for spring vacation and took over the beach. Carmelites woke up Monday morning and found that the setting for the party seen the next day was rather terrible. Some described our beautiful beach as "just a million beer cans." Carmel's beach was a mess; it was left in awful shape. All of which gave rise to much comment in town this week as to what should be done about this situation in the future. Many were the suggestions made by various people and factions.

However it was the general consensus that the situation was handled in the proper manner. Joe College had his fun and the street department went down to the beach the next day and in about four hours cleaned it up, hauled off a truckload of empty beer cans and called the whole thing just a big party. Why make a national calamity out of the matter? Just clean up and start over, and the next time we have a lot of people enjoying the beach to their own tastes, do the same again.

BUSINESS: BUS FARES

Commuters who ride the Bay Rapid Transit busses over the hill will have to pay two dollars more per month, beginning tomorrow, for their commutes, according to a recent Public Utilities Commission order following a request by the bus company to raise its rates. The eight-dollar ticket (no transfer) will be raised to $10; the 10-dollar ticket (with transfer) will be $12. Student 20-ride monthly commutes will be increased by 50 cents.

Children will have to pay 20 cents, instead of 15 cents, between Carmel and over-the-hill points, but the adult fare will still be 30 cents.

TRUSTEES FAVOR SKILLS TEST

A systematic new testing program designed to ensure that all Carmel High School graduates have mastered basic English and mathematics met with a favorable response from the school board last week.

The tests in reading, writing and mathematics will be required of all students after June 30, 1981. It is one of the new "basic skills" requirements included in AB 65, the education reform bill enacted last summer.

District officials admitted that some aspects of the tests are arbitrary and that changes may be made in the future.

But, according to Paul Sheckler, vice-principal at Carmel High School, the task force which prepared the standards and tests believes they represent "what we expect the students to know when they graduate."

CV MOUNTAINSIDE CONTINUES TO SLIDE

Despite the best wishes of Monterey County officials, the mountain slide on Carmel Valley Road continues to slip.

And because the landslide appears to be taking its own sweet time about coming down the mountain, county officials say they have been hampered in their decision on how to deal with the problem.

At least another week of geologic tests are necessary before the nature of the slide can be accurately described, and until then, the county will not be able to determine which of two options to take to reopen Carmel Valley Road where the rockslide has split the Valley and closed Carmel Valley Road.

International flavors

MASTERS OF Food & Wine '88 was off to a great start last Wednesday evening with the Opening Night Reception at Highlands Inn. The Fireside Room was filled with aromas of delicacies from Austria, Germany and from New York to California with the finest German and Californian wines.

The international flavor of the renascent rendezvous brought out 200 local worldly aficionados of food and wine. Co-sponsors were Joseph Zucker (Lufthansa Airline) and Highlands Inn. Peter Komposch, general manager of the Inn said, "This is done for those who like good food, good wine and good times with friends."

Orchids and stars were apropos as Wine Room table decorations for the luncheon prepared by the famous Jeremiah Tower (owner of Stars Restaurant in San Francisco), and wines selected by the famous Robert Mondavi. While Chef Tower was adding the last touch of perfection, Jeff Solenberger (Highlands Inn food and beverage manager), welcomed the affable Robert Mondavi to the podium.

At age 75 (and looking about 50), Mr. Mondavi is an excellent example that wine is not only an aid to good health but to a youthful appearance as well. He has traveled the world over to learn about wines and to sell American culture abroad. This year he plans to add the art of music to his agenda.

"This has been my mission for 52 years. To educate that wine is a temperate, civilized, romantic liquid food that has been praised for more than 8,000 years," adding, "The finest moments in life are spent around the table with family and friends."

Certainly one of the finest moments of the Masters event was the Mondavi/Tower lunch. Margaret (Mrs. Robert) Mondavi spoke of the marriage of the wine with each course on the menu. During the main dish she said, "Part of the enjoyment of Pinot Noir is the color. Is it Rio? No, it is Matisse in la Provence."

The 15 members in Jeremiah's hands-on cooking class learned the preparation secrets of the menu we all enjoyed so much: baked polenta cups (mushroom, crab and goat cheese fillings), grilled vegetable salad, filet of salmon with black angelhair and beet pastas with herb butter sauce.

Wines offered with these delicious dishes were: 1984 Fume Blanc Reserve, 1985 Chardonnay Reserve, 1985 Pinot Noir Reserve, 1983 Sauvignon Blanc Botrytis — all Robert Mondavi Winery specials.

Jeremiah, "a star born in the kitchen," did not appear until after the Stars Lemon Pudding Souffle was served. He entered to a round of applause. "I have never been to Germany and I have never worked with a crew like this one today," he said as he hugged Mario Scheuermann and thanked executive chef Don Ferch and his Highlands Inn staff.

DON BACIGAL asked Janice Clayfield to meet him at the LA airport and that he had a surprise for her. She did. They flew to Monterey where a limo was waiting and upon arriving at Highlands Inn he told her he brought her up for the five-day Masters of Food & Wine.

This was disclosed to us while sipping Tattinger, Maison Deutz, Domaine Mum California Cuvee and Veuve Clicquot champagnes and looking through the misty fog over the Pacific Ocean from the Sunset Lounge, Highlands Inn. We also caught up on other Masters news and learned that Marvin Wiebe (of Carmel and Lodi), won the Lufthansa round-trip tickets to Germany and that Don Peterson (of C.V.) won the book on Germany. Both prizes were awarded at the tasting of German wines.

Jeff Solenberger welcomed some 90 guests to "An Exceptional Evening with Christian Petrossian" in a Fireside Room set with red roses, crystal and candlelight. At the end of the evening, exceptional seemed inadequate to describe the warm charm of Mr. and Mrs. Christian Petrossian, his New York general manager Dro Proudian and dining a la Petrossian style.

We always loved caviar (especially Beluga), having savored it not only in this country but in Iran and the Soviet Union, and were delighted when Mr. Petrossian called it "a magic food, rich in vitamins A, B, C, D, phosphorus, potassium and iron. In short, it is an aphrodisiac. Caviar is to make you happy," he smiled.

Three generous portions of caviar were dramatically served on white porcelain plates with vodka and champagne. Picasso's favorite — Beluga; Ian Fleming (James Bond author) always orders Ossetra, and Charles de Gaulle preferred Sevruga.

In the 1920s Diaghilev brought choreography to Paris, Igor Stravinsky brought music and the Petrossian brothers (Christian's father and uncle), brought "a dream, a philosphy of life and living" — caviar. With the assistance of Cesar Ritz, caviar soon found its niche in the world of gastronomy.

However, Christian was aghast to find Americans putting onions, eggs, and lemon on this delicacy. Since his arrival here, Americans have learned that caviar is best when eaten with pearl, ivory or a gold spoon with warm white toast and a little butter.

The second plate of the "Exceptional Evening" was thinly sliced smoked salmon brought over from the smokehouse outside Paris (The Petrossian brothers built the first smokehouse in France), and followed by two foi gras — goose and duck.

Helmut Horn, president of the Coastal Hotel Group, called it "The Christian Petrossian talk show." The guests loved it all and found Christian's zest-for-the-best-in-life and his sense of humor appealing.

As the foie gras vanished Mr. Proudian said, "I think we should all run in the marathon tomorrow."

"Thank yous" should go to the Highlands Inn for creating the Masters of Food & Wine and bringing it to our door; the Caspian Sea for playing host to those sturgeons; and to Christian Petrossian for presenting the finest foods in the world in Carmel.

HOW OFTEN do you have the fun of buying food on the auction block? Once a year, anyway, when Hadassah holds its Bid & Bake Sale.

It's ever-so-much more fun than ambling around in the grocery markets, plus, you find items (all homemade), that can't be found in supermarkets. Sweet and sour turkey balls, artichoke spinach souffle, grape leaves filled with veggies, Cornish pasties, noodle pudding (my mouth is watering), corn casserole and other ethnic and American dishes.

The best news is that next year they will commission international dishes. Can we wait a year for that?

The sale was held in the Social Room of the new synagogue on Carmel Valley Road. Ellie Muller and Lilly Jameson were auctioneers with comments that never stopped. Maxine Suval lined up the sold items and Joan Lesser and Joyce Schnal reported that the sale made around $400 for Hadassah hospitals.

The next event planned by Hadassah is "A Tribute to Erte — A Spring Fashion Show" in the Monterey Plaza Ballroom. Erte sculpture and mixed media from the Hanson Galleries will be displayed along with fashions by Carmel Plaza.

Erte, master of exotic fantasy, whose fashion designs were so extravagant in detail and hand craftsmanship they were unsuitable for the mass market, so he turned to theater. He used six and one-half miles of gold lame for his desired impact in the Ziegfeld Follies show called Gold.

Still going strong at age 95, Erte (born Romain de Tirtoff in Russia) changed his name in Paris to avoid offending his aristocratic family who thought an artistic career undignified. The revival of Art Deco brought renewed attention to his work.

The invitations sport an Erte design in his well-known frozen pose that best displays a garment and jewelry. The fashion show and luncheon is at 11:30 a.m. Tuesday, May 3; $25 each may be mailed to Hadassah, 24710 Summit Field Road, Carmel 93923. The public is welcome.

PRIDE IS 5 years old and still proud. As they should be, with a goal to make up for the state and federal cutbacks for Pacific Grove school programs. They fill a list of needs, including library and textbooks, music and science education, summer programs and field trips.

Pierre and Marietta Bain, owners of Fandango Restaurant, were hosts for a benefit dinner (two seatings), with all proceeds going to PRIDE.

"What a great idea," someone remarked. "This could happen only in PG." The idea was to have community leaders serving as celebrity waitpersons for the evening and learning new skills as they donned aprons and picked up order pads.

The rain was falling, the tables were set, the fireplace ablaze, PRIDE chairwoman Marilyn Gustafson greeted celebrants at the door and guests loved being served by city government officials for one evening (no double meaning intended).

The atmosphere in this cozy setting was charged with fun and friendly banter. Mayor Morris Fisher was dashing in black tie, councilmember Don Gasperson (ditto in a red bowtie), was heard to mutter, "I feel hurt. My table insisted that the mayor serve them."

SIPPING CHAMPAGNE with Dro Proudian of Petrossian's at Highlands Inn were Mr. and Mrs. Leland Dake.

MARVIN AND Mandy Wiebe of Carmel and Lodi discussed the Masters of Food and Wine event with Don Peterson of Carmel Valley.

JEFF SOLENBERGER took a few notes while chatting with Robert Mondavi and John Mariani, a New York wine and food writer.

PETER KOMPOSCH searched for an item on the menu for Artie Early and Margaret Mondavi at the Highlands Inn.

Other councilmembers with "on-the-job-training smiles" were Erma Dinkel, David Eaton, Joseph Cavallaro, Robert Nunn and Susan Whitman, who quipped (when complimented on her excellent service), "We make better waiters than politicians."

The Fandango atmosphere (sans castanets), was livelier than a Spanish dance and twice as much fun for everyone.

"MEMORIES AT La Mirada" was the theme for the Spring Flower and Horticultural Show given by Carmel-by-the-Sea Garden Club. The floral arrangements brought to life past "party times" during the 158-year history of the famous Monterey adobe.

What made this show a "standout" was that flowers were arranged for specific periods in history as well as for particular rooms at La Mirada — a beautifully furnished home setting. A true delight for visitors who came streaming into La Mirada all afternoon last Friday.

The Pewter Room (1830) was brightened by five entries for the Mexican period and the bedroom off the entrance (1882) held four dainty Victorian arrangements not over 7 inches tall. Upon entering the living room to view the Art Nouveau Period, the piano artistry of B.J. Smith filled the air. First, to catch the eye, blue ribbon winner Mary Lansdowne had used a variety of vines in an Art Nouveau vase given to her mother on her wedding day.

The Sitting Room (1933-46) and the Sala Room (1950-60) held contemporary arrangements with freshly cut branches with some variegated foliage. The Red Room (1970s) had four entries in Art Deco style and the Master Bedroom (1980s) brought four more contemporary styles with exhibitors own tastes in plant material.

Kay Barrett and Helen Fortune did the overall staging and Gail Factor headed the entries. Rosemary Blackstone called in judges by members of the Garden Club of America from Oregon, Washington and Pasadena.

Among blue ribbon winners were Mary Agnes Lansdowne, Bertie Bialek, Janny Despard, Barbara Beardon, Jean Mitchell, Dorothy Singleton, Norma Lee, Marileee Wandke, Betty White, Margaret Luker.

The Castro adobe was given to the Monterey Peninsula Museum of Art by Frank Work and the public is invited to "La Mirada In Bloom" May 7 and 8th, 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. Features roses in the walled garden, 90 varieties of rhododendrons, spring flowers arranged in the adobe, rose potpourri and other house specialties. Admission $5.

THINGS YOU should know about coming up in the future...

FRIENDS OF The Children presents the second "Evening of Music and The Arts" in the Hyatt Regency Ballroom April 22. To the piano music of Scott Fitzgerald guests will be served wine and food while they check out artwork to go on the auction block. Craig Hemphill will pick up the gavel for the auction at 7 p.m. You may call Family Resource Center for info or buy tickets at the door at $25 each.

ALL SAINTS Day School board plans a Dinner/Spring Auction May 1st at CV Country Club with such intriguing item titles as: "Thai One On," "Take a Second Honeymoon," "Wrestlemania" and "Ready For Something Wild?" (Don't get excited — its a Wild Game barbecue.) The evening at $50 begins at 5:30 with silent auction.

CARMEL REPUBLICAN Women's Club has the auction spirit as well and articles for the May 1st auction will be gifts from "celebrities, other famous people, and the rest of us," with proceeds used for high school scholarships.

Patricia Smith Ramsey will be hostess in her Carmel Highlands home 3-7. Buffet and bar all for $10.

SPECIAL OLYMPICS is an event not to be missed. If you've never gone to one, you don't know what you're missing. So, go out April 30 (9-3) to MPC and cheer the athletes who have trained all year with volunteer coaches. Others cheering will be Maj. Gen. Edwin H. Burba, Jr., Rear Admiral Robert Austin, Jim Tunney (NFL referee), Kim Novak, Dave Dalby (Oakland Raiders), Ron Rivera (Chicago Bears), Eric Richardson (49ers), Herman Edwards, Bobby and Ron Johnson (Philly Eagles), etc., etc.

A PREMIERE In Design is set for April 25, 7:30 p.m., Central 159 Restaurant with original designs by Vivienne Riggio and a few elegant evening garments by Avi Ivan. For

REC LEAGUE SOCKO

By Dave Awamleh

A wild week

THE CARMEL-BY-THE-SEA Recreation Department sponsors the Co-Ed Socko League. Games are held on Sunday mornings beginning at 10 at the Carmel Middle School.

Results of the games from the third week of action:

Game No. 1

Great Scott Defenders vs Bully III (10-2)

In the first game of the day the Defenders were led to victory once again by Ron Scaccia. Ron homered in the first and drove in three runs on the day. Along with Ron, Larry Mondonsa went 3 for 4 with a triple and 3 RBIs. Also for the Defenders (who led this contest throughout), Pete Sherpard was 3 for 4 with a double. The Rodriguez brothers, Manny and Tony, continued their hot hitting for the Defenders, going 2 for 3 each. Big Ralph Borrego (with an "o," Ralph), legged out a two-run homer. For Bully III, their bats were fairly silent this week, but Morty "Eddie" Haskell went 2 for 3 and Rhonda Morse had a double and an RBI for the Bully III.

Game No. 2

Bells Bombers vs Energizers (11-9)

In this contest the improving Bombers jumped out quickly, scoring four runs in the first. Then in the second the Energizers scored six runs, all started by the longest home run this writer has seen hit this season to left field, by Howard Ingram. In the fourth the Energizers scored four more to stay on top for good, although Bells Bombers had a late rally in the sixth, scoring four more, but fell short, losing 11-9.

The Bombers scored their runs on the bats of Coach Pete Miller, Janine Cate and Ed Bossard, all going 2 for 3. Also Dave Letterman lookalike Matt Hudson was 2 for 2 for the Bombers. For the Energizers Jack Wood was 3 for 3 with a double, also Stewart Chin had a great day going, 2 for 2, with two runs scored, a double, a triple and 3 RBIs.

Coach Steve Elston hit a two-run homer in the fourth inning that was eventually chased down by rightfielder Doug Starr.

Game No. 3

Sports Barn vs. Jack London's (7-4)

In the third game of the day the Sports Barn pulled out a victory by the margin of 7-4. The Sports Barn scored three runs in the first inning. In the fourth and fifth Jack London's scratched back with three runs of their own to tie it. Sports Barn scored one in the sixth to make it 4-3. Jack London's didn't score again until it was too late in the ninth. Sports Barn got a three-run homer from Brent Eagling to put it away. Jack London's was led by Steve Whitfill who was 3 for 3 with a double and a home run. Neil Anderson was 2 for 3 and Paul Lillis drove in two runs for Jack London's.

For the Sports Barn, their leading hitters were shortstop Dana Hunter who was 3 for 5 with a triple. Also contributing to this 13-hit attack was Todd Bliesner with two doubles and Nadine Ponder, John Abbermonte and Andy Moraz, each going 2 for 4.

Game No. 4

Ball Busters vs. Red Lion Tavern (12-4)

In this see-saw battle there was more "saw" than "see." The reason is because the Ball Busters were leading 4-0, but lost 12-4 to Red Lion Tavern. This 19-hit comeback attack was led by Howdy King who went 4 for 4, two runs scored, an RBI and three, count'em, three doubles. Wow! Mark Housman was 3 for 4, John Pitfield was 2 for 2 with two runs scored and a double. Ronn Olson was 2 for 4 with 2 RBIs and a double and Jack Sevier did the same. For the Ball Busters they were led by Eric Doster, who was 3 for 4 with three RBIs and a solo home run. Sure-handed Andy Rivera was 2 for 3 and Cheryl Rivera was 2 for 4 with a run scored.

Game No. 5

California Jammies vs. the RBIs (12-8)

The final game of the day was a wild one. The Jammies jumped ahead in the first with two runs, then the RBIs scored five in the bottom of the second. The score stayed that way until the fifth when the Jammies scored two to make the score 5-4. In the top of the fifth, the Jammies blew it open with five runs and stayed ahead for good, winning 12-8. The RBIs were led once again by the bat of Brian Rabon. He got his weekly home run, giving him three so far this season. Brian also drove in two runs, as did Rob Lauzon, who went 2 for 3. Coach Bill Kuhns went 2 for 3, too, with an RBI. Let's not forget Ron Hatmaker, who was 3 for 3, scored two runs and pounded a double.

The Jammies attack was led by Phil Ramirez, who went 4 for 4 with a double and a RBI. Also in this 20-hit attack Scoot Lauri was 3 for 3 and six other Jammies had two hits apiece. Steve "Foz" Ferro had a double and a line shot home run over the rightfielder's head. Steve also drove in two runs and had four assists in the field.

Here are the standings after three weeks:

Team: Wins-Losses-Ties
Sports Barn: 3-0-0
Energizers: 3-0-0
Jammies: 3-0-0
Defenders: 2-1-0
Jack London's: 2-1-0
RBIs: 1-2-0
Bully III: 0-3-0
Ball Busters: 0-3-0
Bells Bombers:0-3-0

EDD TO SHARE OPEN HOUSE WITH CHAMBER A.M. NETWORK

The Employment Development Department welcomes peninsula business people to an open house on Friday, April 22, from 7:30 to 9:30 in the morning. The EDD will present its newly remodeled and upgraded facility in downtown Monterey, and invites employers to see the spacious open plan design and the new on-line computer that will amplify recruitment services. The recent automation will increase access to qualified applicants for employers, with instant job order posting over three counties.

Combined with the open house, the A.M. Network sponsored by the Monterey Chamber of Commerce will allow business people a chance to meet and mingle over Continental breakfast while enjoying the new EDD facility.

"We want employers to think of us as a key resource for job applicants," says EDD Manager Sue Woodburn. "The dreary 'unemployment office' image has been replaced with a new look and expanded services. We now offer more to employers, and to job seekers, than ever before, from unemployment insurance information to the Job Club for professional and credentialed applicants."

The EDD office is located at 480 Webster St. in Monterey; for information or job orders, call 649-2922.

FASHION SHOW BENEFIT AT CENTRAL 159

A fashion show benefit will be held at Central 159, Monterey, April 25, at 7:30 p.m. "A Premier in Design" will feature originals by Vivienne Riggio, with additional designs by Avi Ivan in retrospect.

Riggio, based in Pebble Beach, is a graduate of the Fashion Institute of Design and Merchandising in Los Angeles. She has worked in fashion design and costuming, including the Santa Fe Opera. Ivan, from Los Angeles, received his training at Trade Technical College and currently custom designs. Both are influenced by a European look: Parisian color and silhouette for Riggio; clean Italian lines for Ivan.

Proceeds will go to Monterey County AIDS Project. For more information, call 625-5870. Central 159 is owned by Richard Myroth and Chef David Beckwith.

INTERNATIONAL DAY & NIGHT SET FOR APRIL 23

"Children Are Our Future" is the theme for this year's "International Day and Night" being held April 23, at the Naval Postgraduate School.

This annual event is sponsored by the NPS International Committee and students from 20 participating counties. There will be displays during the afternoon and a performance in the evening. The day's displays will be offered from noon to 3 p.m. and feature food and 'beverages, arts and crafts, costumes and travel information indigenous to the participating countries. This will be held in the Root Hall arcade, NPS and is free of charge. The public is welcome.

The night's performance will start at 7 in King Hall, NPS featuring dances, skits, demonstrations and songs. It will start with the opening theme song sung by a choir consisting of eight countries and finish with a flag finale representing all the allied nations attending the Naval Postgraduate School. Admission is by advance ticket purchase.

Cost is $6 for adults and $4 for children 3-12 and seniors over 65. Please contact the International Education Office at 646-2186 regarding ticket availability.

Auction preparations

PREPARING SPRING baskets for the upcoming All Saints' Day School Spring Auction, set for Sunday, May 1 at the Carmel Valley Golf and Country Club, were Chris Sweeney (left), and Alice McGrath. Proceeds will benefit the school, scholarship programs and other student-related expenses. The event will include a dinner and silent and live auctions. RSVPs must be submitted by April 15. For more information call 624-9171.

MONTEREY BAY REPUBLICAN WOMEN'S CLUB LUNCHEON APRIL 26

The Monterey Bay Republican Women's Club, Federated, will host a luncheon at the Elks Lodge in Monterey on Tuesday, April 26 at 11:30 a.m. Addressing the club will be Monterey County Sheriff Bud Cook.

In recognition of April as Child Abuse Awareness Month, Cook will be presented in excess of 100 teddy bears and stuffed animals which have been collected by club members, to benefit children who pass through the Family Emergency Shelter, sponsored and operated by Domestic Crisis Services of Monterey County, Inc. The children who pass through the doors of the Family Emergency Shelter are a part of families that are escaping domestic violence, or are homeless. Stuffed animals collected by members of the Young Republicans and Monterey Peninsula College Honor Society will also be presented at that time. Additional teddy bear and stuffed animal donations will be accepted at the luncheon.

The public is invited; reservations may be obtained by calling Ann Wimer or Carolyn Helliesen, both of Monterey.

LOCAL GROUP WINS REGIONAL TALENT COMPETITION

Thirty-three students, representing Briarcliff Academy's Performing Dance Company, placed first in their division at a regional talent competition held in San Jose on April 10.

The students, whose ages range from 5 to 12, are now eligible to participate in the national competition to be held July 15 in St. Louis, Mo. Under the direction of Briarcliff's dance instructor, Patricia Wester, this team presented a 5-minute routine of synchronized dance sport — a blend of dance and gymnastic ball skills.

Locally the dance company has performed at Park Lane, MPC, area high schools and is available for presentations to

WHY BUY AN ACURA THAT CALLS ITSELF A LEGEND WHEN YOU CAN OWN A CAR THAT IS ONE?

The Acura Legend $21,010* | The Volvo 240 DL $16,920*

The Acura "Legend" has been on the market a mere two years. Which makes it a legend in name only.

If you're in the market for a legendary car, consider investing in a Volvo 240. A car with a proven history of dependable performance. And a reputation for quality, safety and durability that is the envy of the automotive world.

Of course, the fact that the Volvo 240 has been around a long time hasn't left it behind the times. The sumptuous interior and superior ergonomics rival those of cars costing thousands more. And details like an advanced air-conditioning system that actually filters pollen out of the interior will make even the most discerning driver breathe easier.

So, before you buy a "Legend," see your Volvo dealer. Maybe what you really want is a legend.

VOLVO
A car you can believe in.

REPUBLICAN WOMEN ASSEMBLE IN STATE CAPITOL TO SET 1988 LEGISLATIVE ISSUES

Alleene Withers, Youth Committee co-chairman of the Monterey Bay Republican Women's Club, Federated, attended the California Federated Women (CFRW) 13th Annual Legislative Advocacy Workshop in Sacramento on April 12 and 13.

Over 1,000 women representing 32,000 CFRW members together with approximately 600 high school seniors from throughout the state assembled in the Sacramento Convention Center. The students were sponsored by CFRW unit clubs throughout the state. Eight busloads, consisting of 304 students from Monterey, North Monterey County, Pacific Grove, Notre Dame, Palma, Alisal, Salinas, North Salinas and King City High Schools attended the workshop, and were being sponsored by the MONTEREY BAY REPUBLICAN WOMEN'S CLUB, FEDERATED, SALINAS AREA REPUBLICAN WOMEN, and the CARMEL REPUBLICAN WOMEN'S CLUB.

Key Republican legislators discussed the 1988 legislative agenda. Governor Deukmejian was invited to the April 12 luncheon as keynote speaker.

Tours of the state capitol will be held for both students and Women of the clubs on April 12. To conclude the first day, a "Rap and Snack" session was held at the convention center for attending students.

On April 13 Republican women legislators and top Republican women from the Governor's staff were honored during the "Women of Achievement" breakfast. The workshop program concluded with a legislative seminar conducted by CFRW advocate, Ellenor Howell.

MONTEREY KIWANIS CLUB HONORS SPECIAL OLYMPICS ATHLETES

Special Olympics athletes were honored at a kick-off barbecue hosted by the Monterey Kiwanis Club at the Elks Lodge in Monterey on Saturday, April 9. The event provided Kiwanians the opportunity to get to know the athletes they will sponsor at the annual Special Olympics Area Games to be held later this month.

Almost 40 developmentally disabled participants of the Gateway Center program arrived at the barbecue to be feted with clowns, balloons, music and a lot of love and excitement.

"This is the first year the Monterey Kiwanis has sponsored this event," said project director Major Bob Kramer, "and it was a great success." The three-hour celebration afforded Kiwanians the opportunity to know and appreciate how very special these athletes are. "They have a lot of love to give and we are more than ever looking forward to our participation with them in the area games," said Kramer.

Serving with Kramer on the Kiwanis committee were Bonnie Lewtschuk, Tim Madden, Lynn Traynor and project advisor,

Third Annual Big Sur Marathon starts in fog ends in sunshine

Photographs by Gregg Wutke

FORMER CARMEL resident Mike Lundblad, now a resident of Olympic Valley was congratulated by race organizers and fans after winning the men's division with a 2:33:18 mark.

NELLIE WRIGHT of Pacific Grove crosses the finish line at the Big Sur Marathon with a record women's time of 2:55:44, shattering the record of 3:00.44 set in 1986 by Leslie McMullin.

BIXBY CREEK Bridge, with the Big Sur coast, formed a beautiful backdrop for the third annual Big Sur Marathon, which attracted 1,628 entries (1,301 runners finished), from the U.S. and a dozen other countries.

LEAVING THE fog far behind, these runners take advantage of a flat, straight stretch of road to distance themselves from the rest of the pack. The day started foggy and cold for the runners and sunny and hot by the time they reached the finish line.

THE LONELINESS of the long-distance runner can even be experienced at the Big Sur Marathon it appears as Byrle Smallen of Agoura Hills appears to be the only runner on the road during the early goings of the race.

PIANIST JONATHAN Lee serenaded the runners as they reached the Carmel Highlands and the last leg of the marathon. Lee performs regularly at the Highlands Inn.

SPECIAL OLYMPICS runner Darren Guertner of Salinas and his running partner Robert Kramer, who both finished at 4:03:31, 650th and 651st places respectively.

HUMOROUS SIGN placed by runner David Marshall signals the start of one of the many torturous hills on the Big Sur course. Marshall also had another sign for a hill that read "Pain in the Ascent."

Hi yo, Silver Jones

AFTER NINE months of planning and endless swirling rumors about its impending debut, Silver Jones Restaurant opened in The Barnyard last week to instant popularity and acclaim. Co-owners Jack Silver andMichael Jones brought along their loyal followings, of course — Jack was for 12 years the genial host of the General Store while Michael created A Moveable Feast. Savvy diners from all over town converged on this new hot spot.

Located in what had been the Pomodoro and before that Picasso's, with pleasant outdoor tables under umbrellas and Southwestern decor inside, Silver Jones forges boldy into an original arena. The menu includes an "Old Fuzzy" Arkansas ham and brie sandwich, "Glasnost Salade (roast beef and Red Stuff)," roast Australian lamb with turnips, and grilled Oregon steelhead with cilantro butter.

Ever craving some kind of inside dope, we decided to ask the waitress what the other customers were praising. Everybody was raving about the Ansel's sorrel asparagus soup (named for Ansel Adams, who himself enjoyed it), she replied, and the Pizza Cecilia was eliciting cries of joy. We ordered both.

The soup was fresh, creamy, heartening, all those good things, but it was the pizza that drove us wild. Spago's in L.A. makes a similar pizza for about 50 bucks a slice, but this one's Michael Jones' own recipe of course. It's on very thin crust with a white creme fraiche sauce, sun-dried tomatoes, chili peppers and chevre and it's sensationally delicious as well as a bargain at $5.75 for lunch, $6.25 for dinner.

Dining companion Mac McDonald agreed and also praised his wok charred spicy tuna with mango relish (you read it right). The name makes you think it's going to be Chinese-influenced, Mac said, but it proved to be grilled tuna filets with a wonderful fresh vegetable and fruit salsa.

But how about that pizza! "It's a Strausbourg style pizza," Jones explained when he emerged from the kitchen. "It's really a tarte flambe." By any name, it's worth having another.

WITH PRESIDENTIAL politics so much in the news, Bay Lights endorses the culinary candidate, none other than Bill "Spaceman" Lee, former left-handed pitcher for the Boston Red Sox, who is running on the Rhinoceros Party ticket. "No guns, no butter," is Spaceman's campaign slogan; "there's too much cholesterol in butter," he explained to a large rally in Cambridge, Mass.

Spaceman made headlines when he claimed that he sprinkled marijuana on his breakfast cereal. "I never said I 'smoked' pot," he explained. Pressed for his position on

Helping others

From the April 16, 1979
Carmel Pine Cone

Once upon a time I attended a state convention of psychiatric social workers and the theme of the conference was that in no way or at any time were they to become emotionally involved with the "client." (Their word, not mine.)

Finally a volunteer lay worker from St. Vincent de Paul Society said: "I think you phony do-gooders should all quit and become hod carriers. You can't get emotionally involved in that job."

Then he added: "When I visit a poor or troubled family I bring a loaf of bread, some food or clothing. Sometimes I just visit and listen but I always wash the dishes, scrub the kitchen floor, make the beds, change the baby and then I kneel down and say a prayer with them."

Thank God for volunteers, Pink Ladies, Salvation Army, drivers of cars for the sick and Meals on Wheels for their name is legion. When I was young we just called them good neighbors. They sense that the world is full of people who need to be helped, to be hugged, patted on the back, listened to but most of all to be loved.

Yesterday, a friend of mine partially paralyzed on his left side, told me: "The day isn't long enough to do all the things I've planned to help people less fortunate than I am. I can drive. You know something, helping people has cured me of worrying about my stroke. All day I'm too busy to worry and at night I'm too damn tired."

TAKE MY WORD FOR IT

By D. Patrick Gallagher

Class consciousness

WEALTH AND position have always fascinated Americans. Lists of American millionaires are published every year and the growth of personal fortunes is followed with no small amount of awe.

Someone once said there is no more class-conscious society than a classless one. Evidently true. Society columns, books and television shows abound so we can track the recreation of the rich and famous and our language is studed with terms relating to social and economic rank.

Use of such terms is sometimes considered elitist and the user accused of putting on airs, which is probably a corruption of putting on heirs, or affecting superiority. It was a common practice in the 19th and early 20th centuries among foreign visitors to adopt phony titles with which to impress gullible Americans. Some titles were authentic, but even these were often impoverished fortune hunters seeking marriage with the sons or daughters of wealthy American businessmen. Once unmasked, they frequently had to be bought off by the chagrined father.

Sometimes the process was reversed when Americans enamored of such titles went abroad deliberately "shopping" for aristocratic partners for their children. These intentions were often incorporated into the Grand Tour, a kind of international cotillion, or coming out party for the exceptionally well to do.

The cotillion was designed to introduce young ladies of the better families to young men of other better families, people they should know. Its popularity died for awhile in the 1960s and '70s except in New England and the South, but in recent years it has seen a resurgence like formal weddings and proms.

The Grand Tour was supposed to introduce wealthy young Americans to the great cities and culture of our Western European heritage. The tour usually included London, Paris, Rome and perhaps another Italian city or the French Riviera. The Americans who made the Grand Tour, as well as the families with whom they met and socialized, were considered polite society. The term was not so much a compliment on the manners of the upper class, which could be anything but polite, as it was the creation of a superstratum to set old money apart from the nouveau riche. The latter were often composed of immigrants or the offspring of immigrants who were taking advantage of the egalitarian facade of American society and its economic opportunity to amass great fortunes at a frightening rate.

ACCUMULATING MONEY did not, however, assure one a knowledge of the accompanying social graces. These were learned by a systematic process of education which included the right schools and the right people. It has been suggested that many of the rules of conduct in polite society were created as an exclusionary process, a code to tell who really belongs and who does not.

Many of the new, monied interlopers were Irish Catholics. In the 19th and early 20th centuries, we were considered a threat by WASPs (White Anglo-Saxon Protestants), no less dire than the hordes of Ghengis Khan. WASPs, typically, were the first people to apply the term native Americans to themselves.

In addition to separating themselves from the nouveau riche, the old families separated themselves from one another. Ward McCallister was a self-proclamined, local arbiter of social distinctions who in 1888 defined the social elite of New York to be composed of only 400 families. They were, in McCallister's estimation, "the only people worth knowing." His reference became famous as a synonym for the very rich, the Fourhundred.

No list naming the members of this elite group was ever published on the assumption that those who belonged, knew they belonged, while those who did not benefitted from not having their names publicly excluded from such a list.

Preppy is another term from society, but it is so involved that we will reserve it for another time. Suffice it to say that it generally denotes attendance at a prestigious prep school, the best known of which are in New England and is never to be confused with Yuppie, which is an entirely different animal. To a Preppy, a Yuppie is NOKD (Not our kind, dear).

Idiosyncrasies among the class-conscious abound. Certain people and places simply don't exist. The matriarch of New York's wealthy and prolific Murray-McDonald clan is supposed to have responded as she was importuned by one of the family's children to invite a friend for the weekend, "If they were anyone, we would know them."

There is a story in our family, which I suspect is apocryphal, about an aunt who greeted her niece's companion on a visit to Boston by inquiring where the friend's home was. The young woman replied politely, "I live out west in Iowa." "Oh, my dear," the aunt is supposed to have replied gravely, "in Boston we pronounce that, Ohio."

Saturday at Hidden Valley...

Bands wage war against musical apathy

By MAC McDONALD

IT'S A war out there.

With that in mind several Monterey Bay area rock bands are strapping on guitars and cranking up their amps to do battle against musical apathy.

In the first of what they hope is a long line of shows, a coalition consisting of local rock bands is getting together under the aegis COMBAT to perform a rare afternoon show at an even rarer, at least for rock music, venue: Hidden Valley Institute of the Arts in Carmel Valley.

Popular local bands Lovers and Strangers, Floating Mission, Medflys and Live Culture, will perform a benefit concert at 2:30 p.m. Saturday, April 23 at Hidden Valley. COMBAT (more on the name later), which also consists of Santa Cruz bands Boys Choir and Rhythm Box and Monterey band ETA, was formed to, to quote the group's motto: "Declare war on musical apathy on the Monterey Bay."

"We wanted to create some kind of unity among bands because they weren't getting any attention," says Steve Vagnini, one of the founders of COMBAT and a band manager. "And it's not just bands per se, but bands that perform original music — they're trying to make a statement both musically and politically."

COMBAT was formed to try and increase the bands' visibility, increase the public's awareness of live, original rock music in the area, bring some unity in the often haphazard music scene and to also get record companies in Los Angeles to sit up and take notice, Vagnini says.

"We're just starting to get to know each other, but we found out we have some of the same concerns, we're trying to help each other out," says Vagnini. "That's the whole point. You want to see someone make it from here — it helps everyone out."

There's also a good reason that the show is being held in the daytime in a venue which is noted for its musical offerings, but on a much different scale.

"People think that (this type of) music has to be involved with people drinking, drugs and stuffy bars. But we're trying to get away from that, get it away from the bar scene. They'd like to get more exposure to different audiences."

That not only includes younger audiences, but older ones, too, ones that have tired or are intimidated by the "bar scene."

"We're competing against VCRs, stricter drinking and driving laws, and, it's sad to say, a lot of people in 'the scene' back then were into drugs. Now bands are saying you can have fun and not get loaded. A lot of younger people out there don't get a chance

ARTS & LEISURE

Past recalled fondly at Good Old Days celebration

THE TOWN that prizes tradition and community spirit will once again express those values during its annual Good Old Days celebration and arts and crafts fair.

BOB COLTER (left) and Carey Crockett will put in an appearance as two screen immortals during a Laurel and Hardy Film Festival sponsored by the Sons of the Desert. Screenings and fun will begin at 1 p.m. Saturday at the Lighthouse Cinemas, 525 Lighthouse Ave. in Pacific Grove.

Yet the festival that is uniquely Pacific Grove, with its three days of activities and events for adults and children, should draw hundreds from out-of-town as well as flocks of locals.

Sponsored by the Pacific Grove Chamber of Commerce, Good Old Days officially starts Friday, April 22, with the Wood Shaft Golf Tournament at the Pacific Grove Municipal Golf Links. The family events begin in earnest Saturday, April 23.

The Good Old Days' trademark event is its parade, which features an elaborate procession of marchers, floats and historical vehicles.

The parade begins at 10 a.m. on Pine Avenue near Fountain at Robert Down Elementary School. It proceeds down Fountain Avenue to Lighthouse Avenue, where it turns left and continues until 17th Street. The parade then returns to its starting point on Pine.

The Good Old Days is not only a celebration of spectacles but also of contests.

Children and adults as well will attempt to out-gorge their opponents in the traditional pie eating contest, returning at 1:30 p.m. Winners of that contest will go away with ribbons in the old-fashioned and messy event. Similarly, Sunday will be punctuated with a bubble gum blowing contest.

Coming back a second year is the Motorcycle Police Officers Competition, held downtown Saturday at noon. An exciting event, not without an element of danger, that competition last year brought riders representing police departments from as far away as Oakland and Modesto.

The rules are simple but the skills required

THE ELIHU BEARD House at 139 19th St. in Pacific Grove is among the homes that will be open Sunday, April 24 during the Good Old Days Celebration. The home was built in 1880 as a summer home for Beard, a grain farmer from Stanislaus County. Seven generations of his family have been a part of its life since then.

considerable. The officers ride their bikes through a swervy obstacle course of cones lined up on Lighthouse.

The Firefighters Contest has not been scheduled this year because of the water shortage on the peninsula, according to Marabee Boone, executive vice president of the PG Chamber of Commerce of Commerce.

This year's new contest, the First Chamber President's Invitational Challenge, is to remain a mystery until it is actually carried out, Boone said.

She explained that PG Chamber President Bob Doerr has challenged other chamber presidents to a contest, the last event of Good Old Days Sunday at 1:30, but he's keeping it a surprise until then.

The arts and crafts fair will go from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. on Saturday and Sunday, providing the opportunity to buy the wares of local artisans. In addition, a quilt show, sponsored by the Monterey Peninsula Quilters' Guild and the PG Heritage Society, will be held at Chautauqua hall from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. on those days. Both new and antique

Rock bands perform at Hidden Valley Music Seminars

to see bands because they played in bars."

Vagnini, after searching and not finding an adequate venue, approached a seemingly unlikely source: Peter Meckel, general manager of Hidden Valley, an institution primarily known for its presentations of classical music.

"I told Steve that we would be interested in anything that helps in developing serious new music and to create a situation without being threatening to anyone: hold it in the daytime, not serve liquor, have adequate security. We said we'd be delighted," says Meckel.

He also feels it's not such a stretch of the imagination that Hidden Valley is hosting a show that features electric guitars and synthesizers rather than violins and harpsichords.

"I think it appeals to people's 'humorous incongruities' for a place known for opera and chamber music to do this kind of thing," says Meckel, laughing. "We've had a nice, but distant connection to the field (of pop music). It's a departure, but it's in the spirit of looking at new music, in that sense it's not new for us."

THE IDEA for COMBAT came out of a music column written by Medflys' cofounder and frontman Carl Christ, who was lamenting the lack of a coherent, vibrant music scene on the peninsula.

"I was harping on the lack of enthusiasm in the area for original, live music," says Christ, who in the same column also praised the San Jose musicians' collective First Strike, which has helped garnered San Jose area bands some regional, if not national attention. "I said to myself, 'Are the kids getting jaded? I don't think so. Is it MTV? Or was I just missing it?' "

At the time Christ says he didn't have much hope, figuring readers out there would think it just the rantings of a disillusioned writer/musician.

"I was so down — I didn't think anything would come of it. But lo and behold," he says grinning. "I just said, 'Here's the seed, if anyone wants to, they can water it.' "

Enter Vagnini with his watering can. The swift and enthusiastic response from musicians probably took the two by surprise.

"It was great," says Christ. "Now it's finally coming together. There's a lack of competitiveness, there's a camaraderie, and interest from the press and general public. Something's happening."

Members of the coalition also hope to get the attention of audiences farther south: the record company representatives — usually based in Southern California — searching for new acts. With the coalition the bands also hope to be able to continue writing and performing original music and not have to become — horrors! — Top 40 or "cover" bands.

"A lot of it has to do with not losing sight of what you're trying to do in the first place — be a recording artist," says Vagnini. "The key is to get the bands' music on the radio. People hear music on the radio and they no longer think of them as a local band. They're "recording artists."

THE ACRONYM COMBAT came out of the coalition's desire to identify themselves with a catchy and memorable name.

But every attempt at coming up with something that included "coalition," "Monterey Bay area," and "bands" came out, as Christ says, "BOMB or CRUMBLE or MUMBLE." They finally settled on COMBAT as strong, direct, and easy to remember.

"Unofficially, it's Coalition Of Monterey Bay Aural Terrorizers," jokes Christ. "I hope this will make a difference. I've heard a lot of talk about it and I'm very happy."

Future plans for COMBAT include more structure in the organization, a newsletter, more venues and more shows, perhaps even a regular thing at Hidden Valley, which is the beneficiary of this first show, at least financially. The way it's shaping up it doesn't appear that Hidden Valley is the only one that will benefit.

The all-ages show (no alcohol sold or permitted) is $6 at the door. Hidden Valley is located off Carmel Valley Road just west of Carmel Valley Village. For more information call 647-8106 or 659-3115.

Bay Symphony, I Cantori perform

EIGHTY SINGERS from I Cantori di Carmel will join with a 60-member orchestral ensemble from the Monterey Bay Symphony to present an all-Verdi concert at Sunset Theater in Carmel. Dr. Sal Ferrantelli will direct the concerts, scheduled 8 p.m. Sunday and Monday, April 24-25. The concerts will feature soprano Susan Gonzalez and tenor Gene Albin as soloists.

The Night of January 16th

The Drama Department at Monterey Peninsula College will open The Night of January 16th in the SRO Theatre on Thursday, April 21.

This is the only play written by philosopher Ayn Rand. In a courtroom setting, Rand sets a prosecutor and defending attorney against one another as they try a murder suspect while representing the two sides of Rand's basic analytic platform.

There is no jury in this courtroom. Instead, volunteers from the audience are asked to render whichever verdict they deem appropriate.

Performers include Bill Snare, Rick Campbell, Patrick McEvoy, Sandy Sidener, Bill Bumar, Brian Burt, Robert Basgall, James Duffin, Nancy Kocher, Barbara Dirickson, Ellis Allbee, Randy Rock, John Freeman and Paul Springer.

Catherine Holliday directs The Night of January 16th. Curtain is at 8 p.m. Thursdays through Saturdays until April 30, with a Sunday performance at 8 p.m. April 24.

Tickets are $4 and $2. For reservations, call Center Stage Ticketing at 649-5561. If you'd like to be a juror, call Diane Travata Rowe at Center Stage.

Waiting for Godot

Samuel Beckett's Waiting for Godot continues its run at Cherry Hall in Carmel. Nick Zanides directs the production for Monterey Peninsula College.

Waiting for Godot is a unique theater work. Two dilapidated bums fill their days as painlessly as they can. They wait for Godot, a personage who will explain their interminable insignificance, or put an end to it.

The cast includes Ann Mattingly, Mark Heckman, Phil Pratt, Eric Baldwin and Henry Guevera. Curtain is at 8 p.m. Thursday, Friday and Saturday, April 21-23, in Cherry Hall, located at Guadalupe and Fourth in Carmel. Tickets are $8 and $5 and reservations can be made by calling 649-5561.

The Elephant Man

The true story of John Merrick, whose hideously deformed body hid a remarkably intelligent and sensitive human being, is captured in The Elephant Man. Bernard Pomerance's award-winning play continues at the GroveMont Theater.

John Rousseau directs The Elephant Man, which features Stephen Moorer in the title role. Appearing in multiple roles are Jerry Connelly, Alan Smith, Rene Farjeon, Stephen Canepa, Maryann Schaupp and Jerry Gill. Sets are by Carey Crockett, lighting by G. Crane Coleman, costumes by Lady Ramirez and original music by Jim Mairs.

Curtain for The Elephant Man is at 8 p.m. Thursday through Saturday, April 21-23, at the GroveMont Theater Arts Center. One Sunday matinee has been scheduled for 2 p.m. on May 8. Due to scenes with partial nudity, the production is recommended for mature audiences.

General admission is $9.50 on Fridays and Saturdays, $8.50 on Thursdays and Sundays. Student and senior citizen admission is $8 on Fridays and Saturdays, $7 on Thursdays and Sundays.

For information, reservations or group bookings, call 649-6852. For advance tickets, call 649-5561. The theater is at 320 Hoffman (between Lighthouse and Hawthorne) in New Monterey.

How the Other Half Loves

Romantic entanglements and their resulting complications punctuate How the Other Half Loves, a farce by Alan Ayckbourn. This production by The Pawnshop Players is presented at Carmel High School.

Ayckbourn is noted for using theatrical tricks, and in this comedy the "trick" is that the living rooms of two couples are portrayed in a single set.

Final performances are set for 7:30 p.m. Friday and Saturday, April 21-22, in room 2, the theater at Carmel High School. Tickets are $3 general and $2 for students.

The Wiz

The Robert Louis Stevenson School Players will present The Wiz, a contemporary musical adaptation of The Wizard of Oz. Admission is free to this student production, staged in Keck Auditorium on the Stevenson campus in Pebble Beach.

The Wiz will be presented at 8 p.m. Saturday and Sunday, April 23-24.

For further information or reservations, call Center Stage Ticketing at 649-5561, or 624-1257, ext. 338.

The Miser

Moliere's classic exploration of greed, The Miser, plays at the Indoor Forest Theater in Carmel. Marcia Gambrell Hovick directs the comedy, a production of The Staff Players Repertory Company.

Michael Robbins as Harpagon leads a varied cast of rogues. The miser's bitter and underhanded children are played by Connie Erickson and Michael Purcell. The objects of their affections are portrayed by Darrin Larson and Marlie Avant, while the go-between is played by Janice O'Brien.

A gaggle of rascally servants and underlings also populates The Miser. They are brought to life by Bob Faul, Sal Anea, Mary Schmidt, Carol Collins, Paddy Grinstein, Ivan Flansburg, Scott Mattrau and James Goffard.

Curtain is at 8 p.m. Thursdays through Saturdays and 2:30 p.m. Sundays until May 7. The Indoor Forest Theater is on Mountain View at Santa Rita in Carmel. Tickets are $8 general, $6 for students and senior citizens. For reservations, call 624-1531.

The Mollusk

A woman who tries to live her life without doing anything, using her ingenuity to manipulate people to wait on her hand and foot, is the subject of The Mollusk. This 19th century English comedy plays Fridays and Saturdays through May at California's First Theatre.

Curtain is at 8 p.m. at the historic theater located on Pacific Street at Scott in Monterey.

Tickets are $6 for adults, $5 for seniors and teens and $4 for children 12 and younger. For information, call 375-4916.

Silly kids

"YOU'RE JUST a couple of silly kids," exclaims Frank Foster (Pip Schwyzer), knocking the heads of William and Mary (Uwey Prassert and Aaron Riddell). It's all part of the fun in Alan Ayckbourn's comedy, How the Other Half Loves, staged Friday and Saturday at Carmel High.

THEATER REVIEW

By James P. Kinney

'The Elephant Man' opens at GroveMont

THE ELEPHANT MAN, a play by Bernard Pomerance, opened this past weekend at the Grove-Mont Theater Arts Center, 320 Hoffman Ave. in Monterey, with Stephen Moorer in the title role.

A film version of this story, dealing with the short, anguished life of John Merrick, a horribly deformed Englishman of the late 19th century, opened a few years back. The present production is well directed by John Rousseau.

As the play opens, Merrick is being hawked as a sideshow freak by a crude barker named Ross. Merrick is a pitiful creature with no rights, no dignity and, it is assumed, incapable of human feelings.

A young doctor, Frederick Treves, discovers Merrick and, considering him at first merely a fascinating specimen of extreme physical deformity, displays him before a group of his medical peers. But his professional objectivity soon gives way to a curiosity and eventually an affection for the sensitive human being locked into Merrick's hideous physical body. Treves becomes Merrick's patron, protector and, finally, his friend.

News of Treves and his protege spreads quickly and London's Victorian society, fascinated and curious, flocks to meet Merrick. He is visited in the hospital where he is a permanent resident by assorted politicians, lords, duchesses, countesses, an Anglican bishop, even a princess and, finally, Mrs. Kendal, a well-known actress of the day.

Under Treves' tutelage and the warmth of Mrs. Kendal's sincere friendship, Merrick develops into an erudite, witty and thoughtful gentleman, though always painfully aware of his physical deformity and the forces around him which would exploit him for financial gain.

Starting with Strindberg and Ibsen a century ago, serious 20th century theater has increasingly assumed a role as the world's conscience, confronting us with life's deeper moral dilemmas and choices. The voices of earlier European playwrights and later American playwrights like O'Neill, Miller, Wilder and, my personal favorite, Tennessee Williams, as well as a whole new generation of younger writers like Pomerance call out for us to explore and confront the extreme of depravity and moral compassion which co-exist in all of us and to act with courage to confront the suffering in the world.

During the past year, local playgoers have been treated to a number of productions of such playwrights, two of which come readily to mind — Marcia Hovick's production of Ibsen's Ghosts and Nick Zanides' production of Miller's All My Sons. I attended both shows and feel we are indeed blessed to have such sensitive artists in our midst.

The play I am reviewing here is not without its weaknesses. Much of the language, instead of soaring, is as lead-footed and awkward as Merrick's attempts at walking. Victorian society's reactions against Merrick's condition pile up so densely and suddenly that the viewer has trouble sorting them out. But, despite its faults, this play's searing moral outrage burns fiercely underneath all the action and dialogue and cuts through to touch our sensibilities.

"John's terror comes from being held at arm's length by our society," Treves tells Mrs. Kendal at one point. "We have polished him like a mirror," Treves tells another to explain why Merrick's physical repulsiveness has reflected back his society's moral repulsiveness and hypocrisy.

Stephen Moorer's Merrick is, quite simply, riveting. Wearing no special make-up to show Merrick's physical condition, he relies on the actor's basic tools of voice, gesture and movement to create a believable and moving portrayal. The slow, agonized steps make us wince; the gnarled, twisted limbs suggest how great the inner will must be that moves them.

"Rules make us happy because they are for our own good," Merrick cheerfully but sardonically parrots back to his mentor, Treves.

Moorer's Merrick cries at the simple kindness inherent in a healthy hand offered in friendship and gasps in joy and wonder at the sight of his actress friend's breasts bared for his enjoyment.

Moorer's six supporting players each perform multiple roles. Jerry Connolly's Dr. Treves is at different times heroic, bombastic, petulant and defeated. He is, in short, always wrenchingly human. And because Connolly's portrayal so lucidly reflects an ordinary person's reactions under extraordinary circumstances, I became convinced at times that this may have been more Treves' than Merrick's play.

Alan Smith, as Dr. Gomm, was in turn an obtuse bureaucrat, a kindly but cynical observer and a heartless keeper of hospital ledgers in his "Final Report to the Investors." Steve Canepa executed the favorite of a character actor's rich rewards, gamboling joyfully between Ross's sleazy venality and Bishop How's unctuous religiosity. Jerry Gill played five roles, from Lord John's swampy "rootlessness of privilege" to the common decency of a hospital orderly sitting besides Merrick's bed as he lies dying.

Maryann Schapp, although her incredibly demanding costume changes from nurse to duchess to sideshow freak suggested a team of dressers backstage working as feverishly over her as seconds in a punchdrunk boxer's corner between rounds, showed great versatility and verve in her five roles.

Rene Farjeon, with her great Nefertite eyes and smile, was exquisite and self-contained as the Countess, and dignified and warm as the actress who shares her memory of Juliet, her favorite role, and the view of her physical assets in the same even-handed generosity with Merrick.

Set design is by Carey Crockett. Light design is by G. Crane Coleman. Set construction is by Lance Jacobson. The production aspects of the show reflected the high level local playgoers have come to expect of GroveMont shows.

The Elephant Man runs in repertory April 11 until June 4 on weekends. Call 649-6852 for details.

WalkAmerica set April 23

Monterey's Mayor Dan Albert and Mayor Russel Jeffries of Salinas will take up the challenge to prevent birth defects by walking in the March of Dimes annual WalkAmerica, slated Saturday, April 23.

Each mayor will officiate the shotgun start in their city, and then lead the way to a 20-kilometer walkathon with a "team" of walkers. The new walk route begins and ends in Monterey at the National Guard Armory, next door to the MPC campus; and in Salinas at the Salinas Community Center. Registration begins promptly at 7:30 a.m.

1988 marks the 50th anniversary of the March of Dimes.

To join the mayor's team or to form your own team, call the March of Dimes at 646-WALK. Registration forms are available at any 7-11, K-MART, KMST-TV or KDON Radio.

MASTERS OF Food and Wine, Edition II, opened at The Highlands Inn last Wednesday night with a well-attended reception at which European and American chefs and winemakers laid on a groaning feast of unusual appetizers, hors d'ouevres and crudites, together with fine wines from Germany, Austria and the U.S. This elite assemblage turned out to be a hearty party.

Pacific's Edge restaurant's top chef, Don Ferch, created a kind of strudel with artichoke hearts and sun-dried tomatoes which greatly pleased dining companion Lady Leticia Jacks, who also noted happily that vegetarian and seafood dishes were more plentiful than red meat. # THEATER REVIEW

By Joe Guzaitis

'Godot' cometh to Carmel

WHEN WAITING for Godot came to Broadway in 1956, it caused quite a stir. This was the first experience that Mr. and Mrs. First-Nighter had with Samuel Beckett.

Beckett is on Irish writer who lives and works in Paris. His novels are unreadable for most people and his plays, like Endgame or Krapp's Last Taps are bleak in the extreme. Godot is perhaps the most accessible of them all. It is certainly the most popular. Beckett is an acknowledged master of the Theater of the Absurd, and that reputation was gained primarily from this play, of which it is said, "In Godot, nothing ever happens. Twice." In my opinion, everything happens time and again.

Godot was written in the late forties and first performed in 1953 in the Theatre de Babylone, one of the many "pocket theaters" that flourished in Paris after the war. A pocket theater is much like Cherry Hall, whose low overhead enables experimental plays (need I mention Cockroach Tale?) to be performed there on a very small budget. Sartre's No Exit and Ionesco's Bald Soprano also premiered in that left bank milieu. It is extremely rare for a play to go from "avant garde" status to that of dramatic classic in so short a time.

The play deals with two pairs of scruffy characters and a messenger boy. Vladimir and Estragon are the first pair we encounter. Pozzo and Lucky are the other pair. The boy serves as Godot's messenger, relaying his regrets and reaffirming Godot's promise to appear the following night. As the play begins, Vladimir and Estragon are conversing by a barren little tree. Estragon can't get his boot off. Vladimir inquires as to how Estragon spent the night in the open, "And they didn't beat you?" "Beat me? Certainly they beat me!" "The same lot as usual?" "The same? I don't know." Thus begins a dialog that weaves in and out of outrage, pathos, and hostility to end in a kind of serenity. As Vladimir and Estragon dispute, cajole, and discuss, a most strange sight is encountered: one man leading another by a rope. The leader is Pozzo, a vagabond with pretensions; the one led is Lucky, barely literate, who carries the baggage and pants like a dog and has the rope around his neck.

THE RELATIONSHIPS between the pairs echo back to us as we see elements of relationships we know. Vladimir's energy and inquisitiveness is paired off against Estragon's cantankarous, forgetful, petulant behavior. The bonding of these two characters is very touching. They argue, they're sarcastic, they rage; but they are frightened when they think they have lost one another. They panic, then reconcile. They need to have each other, such as they are, wherever they are. After all, they are united in the waiting. Vladimir reminds Estrogon of their necessary vigil. He always sighs. Pozzo and Lucky represent a master/slave relationship, (in this absurdist case more like man and dog.) Even this relationship proves rich when studied for a while, especially around the event of Lucky's speech, a three page monologue of free association.

The second act presents the same kind of bizarre action and circular dialog that has no obvious point. But what emerges through all of this is a, dare I say hopeful, tapestry of words and themes, that are set off against the backdrop of squalor. The program notes point out that the performers discovered "music ... poetic, desolate, and miraculous" in the script. It's all there if you listen for it.

The director took Beckett a step further by casting a woman to play Vladimir, the hopeful one, and not just any actress but Ann Mattingly, one of our finest. Phil Pratt was a special treat as Estragon and gave extra time and energy to the production by doing the lighting design and set construction. Henry Guevara played a suitably puffed-up Pozzo. My heart goes out to Mark Heckman whose commendable Lucky has to sustain such abuse in the course of his role. He is kicked, beaten, and reviled when he's not being dragged by the rope around his neck. Eric Baldwin was very confident as the messenger boy. Ruth Allan's set painting was just right for the scene.

Nick Zanides directs this complex piece knowingly and finds the right emphasis for both words and gestures. I don't think they miss a beat. The only argument I can find with direction is the handling of Vladimir. I did not expect gender change to be a dimension to be explored. When I had heard that a woman was to play Vladimir, I had assumed that it would be like Shakespeare's use of men to play women. However, by referring to Vladimir as "she" (acknowledgeing Ann's femaleness even though she is dressed as a man), another set of speculations about the play becomes possible. For instance, Vladimir, the most hopeful of characters, is the most intelligent, inquisitive, and nurturing, and this will reverberate differently if the character is played as a man or a woman.

Nick Zanides has become a voice of conscience for us all. He is a director of quiet determination who continually stages these important, even difficult, plays and says to us, in effect, "look, there is greatness here." We are all the better for it.

Waiting for Godot plays at 8 p.m. on Thursdays, Fridays, and Saturdays only through April 30. Cherry Hall is at Fourth Avenue and Guadalupe, Carmel. Support your local pocket theater.

Poetry Center seeks submissions

Amateur poets are invited to enter a poem in the Poetry Center's spring contest. Entry is free and poems will also be considered for publication in the third edition of an anthology, Many Voices/Many Lands.

"We provide a showcase for new writing in our publications. Our anthologies will include poems from all over the world, from poets of all ages and writing experience," said Will Stratford, senior editor. "The $500 grand prize winner last spring was 17 years old."

Entries are limited to one poem of 24 lines or less. Name and address must be included at the top of the page.

Poems should be sent to the Poetry Center Spring Contest, 120 Village Square, Suite 100, Orinda, CA 94563.

Deadline for the spring contest is June 30.

DANCE REVIEW

By Nathalie Plotkin

Nevada Dance Theater saved best for last

THE NEVADA Dance Theater was presented last Saturday night as the closing attraction of the current Festival of Dance at Sunset Theater in Carmel. They are a professional ballet company, in residence at the University of Nevada in Las Vegas and the flavor of their home base comes through in their presentations.

What was offered was gently tasteful, audience-pleasing-oriented entertainment that would be at home on a large, culturally pretentious television variety show.

As is usual in these dance evenings, the last was the best. By the time the company has become accustomed to the stage space, the atmosphere and the audience have warmed up and besides, that last number was carefully chosen to send the customers home happy. This strategy was completely successful as far as I was concerned.

Guest choreographer Derryl Yaeger created "Ree-Bach Revival" to music of J.S. Bach for the full company who reacted purposefully and directly to his ideas. When the stage lit up to the strains of the Toccata and Fugue in D Minor, we say a display of athlectic foot gear on a pyramid topped by one gigantic jogging show. The dancers entered with worshipful gestures towards the pyramid and then happily exchanged their ballet slippers for the Reeboks. From there on, all was fun and games, lightness, laughter and the most varied and interesting dancing of the evening. The combination of overtly athletic gestures, balletic grace and a lively sense of humor was a winning one. Not only that, I'll bet the dancers' feet didn't hurt in their unusual ballet shoes.

The first movement of the Italian Concerto was a real spoof of ballet seriousness. The ensuing Two and Three Part Inventions were inventive and high spirited. In a Fugue, one girl and three football-helmeted men goofed around in muscle-bound glory and another number featuring skate-boarders was hilarious. Finally, but all too soon, the sneakers were taken off and put back on the display pyramid and a ballet shoe finale brought the work to a close, except that then everyone sneaked back to reclaim their Reeboks. It was a stylish, polished performance and the highpoint of the evening.

There was a "Grand Pas Classique" by another guest choreographer V. Gsovsky to the music of Auber. Prima ballerina Tamara Lohrenz Morrisey was partnered by Manard Stewart. This is a typical though rather brief pas de deux with solo variations. Ms. Morrisey is a strong queenly dancer and her pointe work was secure and virtuosic. She commands a graceful and finelined arabesque and pirouette technique. Stewart was sturdy in support and his entrechats were clean and fast. He shows promise as a classical dancer.

There were three works by the founder and artistic director of the group, Vasily Sulich, on the program. He obviously prefers subject matter which has a strong ethnic flavor as was evidenced in all three works. The evening opened with "Slavonic Dances" set to music by Dvorak. Here, a dozen dancers created very pretty pictures as they moved with straight-backed posture, arms held high (Czardas style) and feet used lightly to mark the music. However, they seemed to be concentrating very hard and looked tense since they had to be very careful not to collide with each other during the more active dance figures. It is a simple work not demanding much of the dancer's technique, yet pleasing to the watcher.

"Three Greek Songs" set to Greek pop music were equally innocuous, pleasant and undemanding. In the first one, the style was in a modern dance vein as a young couple parted reluctantly. Then came three girls whose dance looked like they had just tripped off an antique Greek vase and finally one of Sulich's pseudo folk dances for eight men and a girl. Again there was eye-pleasing charm and a competent presentation of an essentially simple set of dances.

Sulich's major effort of the program was a recreation of Bizet's "Carmen", but with some adjustments. Clarice Geissel, who was a convincingly sultry and strong Carmen, was endowed with a doppelganger (Karen Martin) who was supposed to be her "Fate", adding additional interesting dance opportunities, but seemed extraneous to the story situation, which was also true of a very well danced sensual dream scene bringing in Tamara Morrisey and Reed Scott in flesh colored body suits. Both additions gave the impression of devices used to extend and diversify the work in a "pops" manner.

Sulich's conceptions definitely seemed to be meant for Las Vegas. He kept things obvious, strong and very colorful. Production values were on a professional level. The costumes were basic, eye-catching and Spanish flavored. The lighting was superior and the set, just the outline of three arches and a small pedestal — was imaginative and appropriate. The principal dancers were given characterizations and steps they could give life and zest to. They threw themselves into the proceedings, making the most of their opportunities very vividly.

This version of "Carmen" is a far cry from the opera, but it has distinct popular appeal which is ultimately what keeps such performing groups alive.

MUSIC CORNER

By Jo Ann La Torra

Sublime spring offering from Camerata Singers

A PROGRAM of sublime music by Mozart and Schubert was the spring offering of the Camerata Singers, conducted by Vahe Aslanian.

Unfortunately for me, I heard the concert Sunday afternoon at Cypress Community Church on Highway 68. Unfortunate — because everything was a bit ragged in the afternoon performance, and because the acoustics at this church fell far short of ideal.

Two works by Mozart, the familiar Ave Verum Corpus, and the Regina Coeli, made up the first part of the program. These wonderful pieces will survive a lot of incompetence in production, but there wasn't all that much of it in evidence. Ave Verum Corpus suffered a bit by having too much soprano sound, overriding the rest of the chorus so that inner voices tended to get lost. The choral sound was much more balanced in Regina Coeli, the final Allegro being especially gratifying.

Schubert's unfamiliar Stabat Mater in F minor (one of Schubert's best keys) made up the other half of the program. It was a treat to get to hear this piece, which is infrequently performed. Featuring three soloists, chorus and orchestra, it is generally too large for liturgical use and perhaps not large enough for some conductors to bother with. It is, however, well worth the trouble, as it ranks with the best of Schubert's religious music. It is in German, and this may keep it from general acceptance, accustomed as we are to having the Stabet Mater in Latin (or English, thanks to Vatican II).

Not the least of the problems of the performance I heard had to do with the acoustics. The church is built in a large square, not usually a good acoustical design to begin with. There is a lot of wood in the ceiling, which should be a step in the right direction, but the wood deflected the sound into wall-to-wall carpet and padded pews. Thud. The music of this period was designed for churches with a lot of reverberation, and it really hurts not to have it. No doubt, the music fared better at Carmel Mission.

The soprano, tenor and bass soloists were all right, though far from inspired. Soprano Sara Ganz' technique is really not geared to this repertoire, and both tenor Raymond Fitzsimmons and bass-baritone Vahan Toolajian had some problems in the upper parts of the voice. Unfortunately for Schubert, which uses all three, their voices did not blend.

Without hearing the concert in a more favorable space, it is impossible to know how many of these problems were directly related to acoustics. We'll be generous and assume a lot of them were, because the music is worth the effort.

JAZZ TIDES

By John Detro

Sultans of sleazy thought

DAVE FRISHBERG wrote a wise song about those sultans of sleazy thought — the wheelers and dealers who know every cost index "but the value of nothing at all." It feels just fine when much more positive people come into public vision.

Herbie Hancock celebrated his 48th birth anniversary on April 12. That's right about the time plans were being finalized for his national tour with Chick Corea — some proceeds from which will help groups that serve homeless folks across this land.

(Momentary dateline: Capitol Hill. DC in wintertime. The Vent People live atop sidewalk heat grates — just a few short blocks from the newest Senate Office Building. This impressive structure was named after Gary Hart. When foreign dignitaries visit The Hill, police roust Vent People up and away. Imagine this urban squatter — an elderly woman who looks at you with the eyes of a child gone mad. In all truth, she has nearly forgotten the craft of human speech. It's her vent. Find another.)

Herbie and Chick will front their own bands throughout the 20-city run which begins June 1 in Seattle. Oficials of Benson & Hedges Command Performances — the corporation's production arm — imagined the pairing and then backed their notion with a $100,000 tour grant. I spoke over the long distance wire with Emmie La Bauve. Her Manhattan office handles all queries on Command Performance logistics.

Los Angeles. Chicago. New York. And so on. The concert nearest to home: June 11 at Cal Berkeley's Greek Amphitheater. One dollar per ticket will go to National Coalition for the Homeless. Redistribution will shoot specific percentages back into hosting localities. Emmie said the Berkeley gig will be produced by Greg Perloff of Bill Graham's staff.

She: "Herbie and Chick liked the tour proposal a lot. Herbie says he'll go back to his classic Headhunter sound, getting up a band called Headhunter II. (Tenor saxist) Mike Brecker will be a featured player her. Chick, of course, will come in with his Elektric Band. We think both bands will jam together at the end of each concert." (Chick has confirmed that element via a separate press statement.)

Estimated sum that'll return to grass-roots outposts nationwide: $150,000. I'll report ticket info as it evolves.

JIMMY LYONS announces more out-of-arena bookings for Monterey Jazz Festival 1988. You know — Garden Stage and Night Club venues which make grounds admission tickets well worth the outlay.

These: John Cortes Quartet with John on multiple saxes and John Donaldson at the piano — Smith and Gail Dobson — the fine Latin group known as Intersection (keyboardist Marcos Silva at its front) — knockout San Francisco vocalist Bobbe Norris plus husband Larry Dunlap playing piano — Jan Deneau Trio. (Pianist Jan also will play between-acts tunes from the arena stage. Radcliff — the Cal Tjader Alumni Band pulled together by Vince Lateano — was signed previously.)

"I still have a few more Sunday night (grounds admission) slots to fill," Jimmy says.

For fun I sent Cortes tapes to Gary Elder, poet-critic pal who lives at Shelter Cove up on California's far north coast. Deep into a long-range prose project, Gary remains one of this country's most astute jazz commentators. His written reaction: "A good helping of Dex, with a Booker Ervin sauce and a dash of Wardell — all right there, sprung from The Fountain. But when he hauls out that elegant old (baritone sax) on You've Changed... I get the chilled spine...I know of only one other baritone solo so profound, and that's Serge Chaloff's Body and Soul ...That (John) Donaldson is some kind of 12-fingered keyboarder."

THE THIRD ANNUAL Monterey Bay Blues Festival (June 25-26 at the Fairgrounds) has assembled a valuable lineup. Among the names just made public: Sonny Rhodes, Bobby Murray Band, Frankie Lee All-Stars, Webb Sisters, Little Milton, Vivian Irving, Johnnie Taylor, Ernie Johnson, John Mayall, Clarence Carter, Broadway Blues Band, Tyrone Davis.

Fest officials have set a May 1 deadline for retention of last year's seats. Other seats in Sections I and II will be assigned on "a first-paid, first-reserved basis." There's a real price break on tickets bought before June 10. You can check out the range of costs and make reservations by calling 394-2652.

Organizers anticipate that "a great variety of Soul Food will be available from vendors" — barbecued chicken and ribs, Louisiana catfish, corn-on-the-cob, greens and black-eyes peas, sweet potato pie. You can't beat that with a big stick.

NOTEBOOK CHUNKS: — Don't forget the free concert Sunday (4/24) at Monterey Peninsula College. Don Schamber's student jazz ensemble — B Natural Trio with bassist Bryan McConnell, Roland Allen on drums, keyboardist Jim Healey — vocalist Ferdie Baje plus pianist Don in his backup unit. Kicks off at 4 p.m. in the MPC Music Hall. (That night, the trio will work the Hyatt Regency's Cafe Monterey. And the Hyatt Whispers Lounge 4/25-26.)

— On Friday and Saturday nights at La Provence, superb jazz pianist Bobby Phillips works behind such singers as Peggy Nesbitt, Lee Durley, Eddie Erickson, Sally Stock, Lil Brown, Shelly Cullin. One per gig, of course. Bobby's Sunday afternoon duo things (with instrumentalists like Kenny Stahl) continue in the same bright room.

— Monday night's star at Kuumbwa Jazz Center (Santa Cruz) — monster tenor man Ernie Watts. It's $11 with an eight o'clock start time. On Friday 4/29 — trombonist Steve Sigmund out of the Ray Charles Band ($3). Reservations: 427-2227.

— In the Sheraton's Monterey Bay Club: Vocalist Lorie Hofer (4/21) with Steve Sigmund and Little Big Fun — Spang-a-lang (4/22-23) — pianist Vince Grimes (4/24) — vibist Rob Lautz (4/25) — Jackie Coon and Ed Erickson (4/26) — back with Lorie Hofer and friends (4/27) — Aaron Aranita's Eastbound (4/28).

— Bow Williams Band at the Monterey Hilton (4/21) with Steve James '50s group (4/22) and Bow again (4/23).

— Pianist Michelle Petrucciani (formerly of Big Sur) will play Yoshi's in Oakland May 4-7. Great room. (415) 652-9200 or Bass Ticketing.

— Jazz-loving Arthur Mitchell's Dance Theater of Harlem will tour Russia next month as part of the two-nation Exchange Initiative Program.

— A quote from fetching vocalist Shirley Horn: "Jazz audiences here in America have changed. It's better now. People listen."

Register now for Proficency Exam

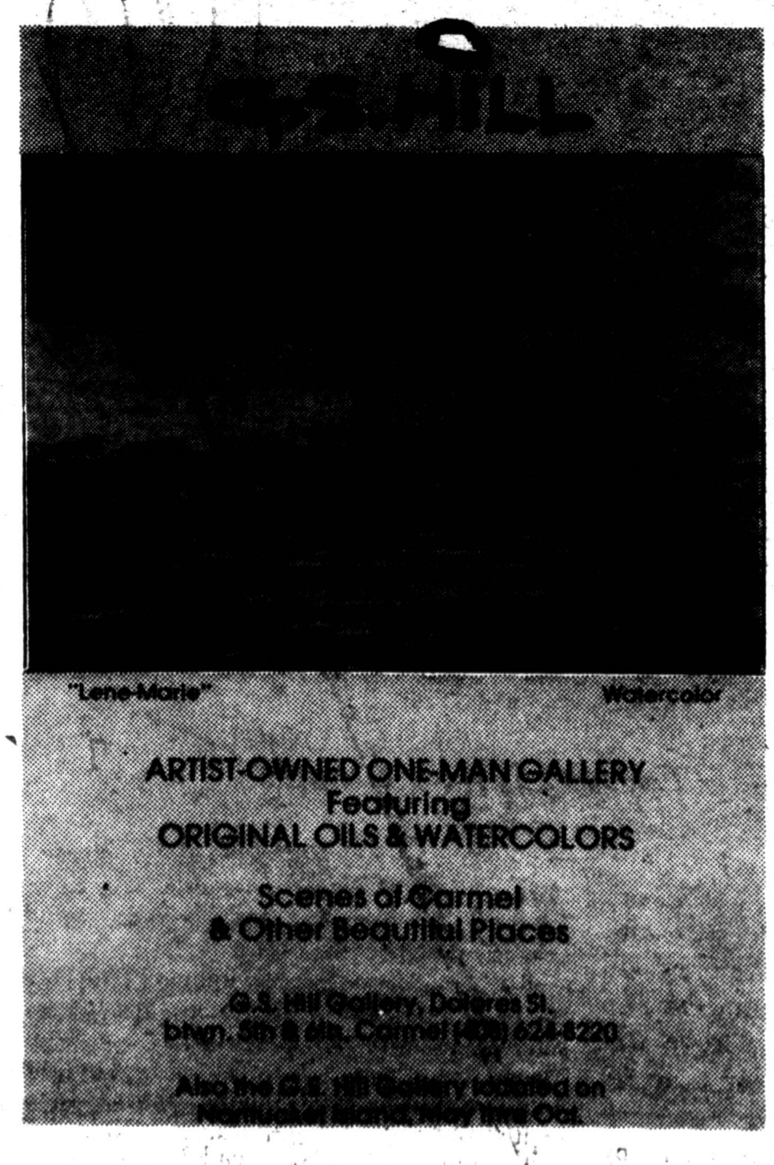
The California State Department of Education has announced that persons wishing to take the next California High School Proficiency Examination (CHSPE) must register by mail not later than Monday April 25. The test itself will be held on May 21, at approximately 100 sites throughout the state.



To pass the four-hour exam, a person must have a grasp of basic skills at least equal to that of the average high school senior.

A Certificate of Proficiency, equivalent by law to a high school diploma, is awarded by the State Board of Education to those persons who pass the CHSPE. Persons who are younger than 18 when they pass the exam, however, must have parental permission in order to leave school before regular graduation.

Open to anyone 16 or older, the exam costs $20 and is given only three times a year. Information bulletins, which include sample questions, a list of test sites, and an application form and mailing envelope, are available at all high schools and most public library branches.

For more information, contact the Department's Program Evaluation and Research Division at (916) 445-0297.

THE CENTURY-OLD Green Gables Inn at 104 Fifth St. in Pacific Grove will have a birthday party on Thursday, April 21. The public is invited to tour the home, now a bed and breakfast inn, and enjoy refreshments from 6 to 10 p.m.

Green Gables Inn turns 100

THE 100TH BIRTHDAY of Green Gables Inn will be celebrated with music, wine and hors d'oeuvres on Thursday, April 21. The distinctive inn at 104 Fifth St. in Pacific Grove will open its doors for tours from 6 to 10 p.m. on the anniversary day.

Built in 1888 as a vacation home by William Lacy, a prominet Los Angeles Businessman, the Green Gables Inn continues to be an architectural treasure in its Victorian neighborhood.

Roger and Sally Post bought the house in the early 1970s as a family home. During the summer months the house was often converted, once again, into an inn when the Posts reshuffled their living quarters and rented out rooms to enthusiastic visitors.

PUBLIC NOTICE

CITY OF CARMEL-BY-THE-SEA
CALIFORNIA

NOTICE TO BIDDERS

Notice is hereby given that the City of Carmel-by-the-Sea will receive sealed bids at City Hall, East Side of Monte Verde between Ocean and Seventh Avenues until 4:00 p.m., on 5 May 1988 for THE SENIOR CITIZEN HOUSING PROJECT AND PUBLIC PARKING GARAGE at which time bids will opened.

All bids must be submitted only on forms furnished by JHW Associates. Copies of Bid Forms as well as Specifications for this project may be obtained at Jacoubowsky, Hawkins, Walker and Associates, Inc. located at 299 Cannery Row, Monterey, California. The contractor shall have the right to substitute securities for any monies withheld by the City to insure performance under the contract pursuant to Government Code Section 4590.

All questions regarding plans and specifications will be directed to Ken Walker at (408) 649-1701.

The City reserves the right to reject any or all bids and waive any irregularities.

Each bid shall be in accordance with the plans and specifications adopted therefor, submitted on the proposal form furnished.

Bids shall be in accordance with the prevailing hourly rate of per diem wages for this locality and project as determined by the Director of Industrial Relations pursuant to Labor Code Section 1773.2 which prevailing hourly rate of wages is made a part of this notice by reference as though fully set forth herein.

If the project requires the employment of workers in any apprenticeable craft or trade, once awarded, the contractors or subcontractors must apply to the joint apprenticeship council unless already covered by local apprentice standards (Labor Code Section 1777.5)

The Contractor shall submit with the proposal on the form supplied, a list of the name and address of each subcontractor and the portion of the work, which each subcontractor will do. If no such list is submitted, it will be assumed that the contractor will do all the work herein specified.

Plans and specifications may be obtained from the JHW Associates between the hours of 8:00 a.m. to Noon and 1:00 to 5:00 p.m. weekdays. Bid security will be required and submitted on AIA Document A310. Contractor's Qualification Statement AIA Document A305 will be required as will Performance Bond, Labor and Materials Payment bond to be submitted on AIA Document A311. These forms are included in the bid documents. Two sets of Contract Documents will be issued to each bidder for which a non-refundable deposit of one hundred dollars ($100.00) will be required. Additional sets of Contract Documents may be obtained from the architect's office at a non-refundable cost of fifty dollars ($50.00) per set.

Prior to commencement of work, the successful bidders must obtain a City Business License. Proof of valid Workers Compensation Insurance and General Liability Insurance, with limits as specified under the Public Liability and Property Damage Insurance Section of this document shall be submitted to the City. The Certificate of Insurance shall guantee that the issuing company shall provide to the named certificate holder, 30 days written notice of cancellation of the Public Liability and Property Damage Policy. Proof of all applicable insurance coverages as required by the State of California or by the City of Carmel-by-the-Sea shall be placed on file with the City Clerk before work shall commence.

Pride in Property...Our Nation's Heritage

American Home Week — A Celebration — April 24-30, 1988

More than 400 Realtors, Realtor-Associates and Realtor-Affiliates belonging to the Carmel Board of Realtors are preparing to observe American Home Week, a nationwide celebration of home ownership and private property rights for people, business and industry. It is sponsored by the more than 800,000 members of the National Assoc. of Realtors. This year's theme, "Pride in Property...Our Nation's Heritage", is intended to remind citizens of their constitutional freedom to own property and the need to protect the rights that come with ownership. The NAR, to which all local Realtors belong, is the nation's largest trade & professional organization. The NAR sponsors a strict Code of Ethics which all Realtors pledge themselves to observe. The president of the Carmel Board of Realtors is Ben J. Heinrich of Heinrich, Dusenbury and Associates, executive vice-president is Virginia E. Williams. —

A CHARMING HIDEAWAY IN BIG SUR COUNTRY

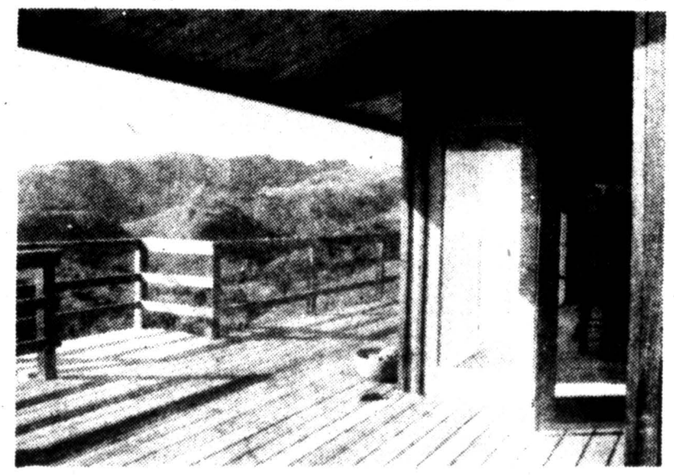
A stepped and gravelled pathway threads through oaks to reach the entrance deck of this shake-roofed, redwood home featuring fine craftsmanship, interior use of stone combined with native woods, and window walls opening to seaward facing decks.

A skylight in beamed wood ceiling, paneled walls, newly carpeted floors, window walls, bookshelves and stone fireplace are features of the newly furnished living room, which opens into the compact kitchen with handcrafted cabinets topped by stone counters. Stone also backs to the propane stove, and a new propane refrigerator is just off-camera to the right. Off this central area, and with both floor and counter-top of stone, the bathroom features a sunken tub in a windowed alcove permitting view of hills and ocean.

The two carpeted bedrooms also lead off the living room and have similar walls and ceiling, as well as ample closets, built in bookcases, and bed-platforms. The entire house has new furnishings, which remain for the new owner to enjoy. Exterior surroundings are also beautifully redone, with new plantings, walkways and decking.



Running along the entire west side of the house, this deck provides outdoor enjoyment of panoramic views encompassing the ocean, coastline and mountains of the Big Sur Country. On the south, the deck widens further, creating a lovely dining and entertainment area. Electric power to the property is provided by PG&E, solar panels, and a propane generator for back-up power; water is from a mutual system. Privacy is assured by the five acre site at the end of a weather-stabilized road, inside a locked gate close to Highway One, approximately 25 miles south of Carmel. Price of this restful haven, amid hills sloping to the sea, over which the sun sets in glowing glory, is now $225,000.

What you see is about half of what you get

This house is a fooler! From the street, you'd judge it's another charming little Carmel cottage. White picket fence, a few oaks and a couple of pines dotting the landscape, a sunken garden leading up to the Dutch front door. The exterior is silvery grey board and batten, the windows and doors are trimmed in glistening white, the roof is shakes, and a brick chimney rises above the ridge pole.

All very traditional and all misleading. Inside, it has all been remodeled with beautiful cabinets, lovely tile work in kitchen and baths, and state of the art lighting (tracks and sunken spots) in every room, including the closets!

The interior is extensive, running back from a large family room to a larger living room to a master bedroom and bath at the rear. In addition, there's a 2nd bedroom and bath and the well-appointed kitchen. And all this is only the upper level. All the walls are horizontal wood planking, whitewashed, and the ceilings are beamed and vaulted. A large, lattice-fenced deck extends out from the living room.

An inside stairway leads down from the living room to the lower level. Floors here, in contrast to the bleached oak upstairs, are all deeply carpeted. There's a 3rd bedroom on the lower floor, a 3rd bath and a spacious family room that opens to another deck. There's also an outside terrace and a sizeable storage room with shelves and cabinets galore. These downstairs quarters can be reached by a separate outside entrance.

All in all, what you thought was a cozy cottage turns out to be almost 1800 sq. ft. It's on Torres Street, the second house south of 10th. This is old time Carmel with a like-new home, completely remodelled in excellent taste. $329,000.

CARMEL LEGENDS

No. 63

There's an old joke in real estate which says the three most important things are: location, location, location. Actually there's a fourth: timing. That's where one of Carmel's earliest entrepreneurs blew it. He was about 100 years ahead of his time, at least 50. His name was S.J. DUCKWORTH; he was 23 years old, operated a real estate agency in Monterey; and he had a vision! Observing the success of Pacific Grove in selling lots for Protestant camp meetings, he reasoned that he could create a Catholic resort in Carmel near The Mission. So in 1886 he bought 234 acres in the northern slope of Carmel from Honore Escolle (an earlier and more timely investor), and in 1888 issued a brochure promoting his property. "Near Mission" in those days was farther away, because his province was bounded by Ocean Ave. on the south, 1st St. on the north, Monterey St. on the east and "Broadway" on the west. The latter later became Junipero! He predicted that Southern Pacific would extend its line from P.G. to Pebble Beach to the Mission within 2 years. This didn't happen (still hasn't), so although he sold some lots (at $25 for a corner, $20 for an inside lot), the project languished and he had to sell out to others. Too much, too soon. Just unlucky. Do you realize we might be living in "Duckworth Shores"?

CARMEL

NEW ON THE MARKET! Here's an older 2 bedroom, 2 bath home with separate cozy guest house. The entire oversized lot is fenced and is in desirable south-of-Ocean location — ideal for walks to town or beach. An artist's studio adjoins the master bedroom which opens onto a lovely garden area and the good-sized kitchen has an adjoining skylit breakfast room. Wood-framed windows, 2 fireplaces and shiny hardwood floors enhance this home which only needs updating to reach its full potential. $450,000. 625-0300.

COZY & LIGHT! A recently remodeled 2 bedroom, 2 bath cottage offering both privacy and charm. With an approximately 400 sq. ft. brick-patio entrance, the property is fully fenced and has forest outlooks from the large rear deck. A marble fireplace warms the cozy, vaulted-ceiling living room, there is a new forced air heating system, and remodeled kitchen & baths. Plus carport. $198,000. 625-0300.

NEW ON THE MARKET! On a large sunny, level corner lot in Hatton Fields, a 2 bedroom home with guest quarters. Appealing features include an open-beamed ceiling and fireplace in the spacious living room, and free-standing fireplace and peek of the ocean from the wood-paneled guest quarters, reached via an interior or exterior stairway, with bedroom, large living room and glassed-in sun porch. Quiet area! $275,000. 625-4111.

PRIME NEIGHBORHOOD! A delightful 4 bedroom, 3 bath family with swimming pool on a private oversized lot in desired area. Flexible floor plan with large guest suite upstairs which could serve as master bedroom. Slate-floor entry leads to tiled kitchen with tiled planter-window. There is a spacious dining-family room area with used-brick BBQ and sliding doors to the swimming pool area, and a used-brick fireplace with hearth adds warmth to the living room. With some hardwood floors, 2 window seats, large windows, and private sun deck, this home only needs some TLC to reach its full potential. $327,000. 625-0300.

NEW ON THE MARKET! Nestled on a totally private oversized lot is this marvelous adobe home plus separate guest house — both enhanced by a gorgeous garden setting, mature oaks and beautiful courtyard entrance. The one-story main house, with its 4 bedrooms & 3 baths, has a fireplace in the living room, separate dining room and patios off each bedroom. The guest house with living room, bedroom & bath has its own private patio. A property that has all the charm you could hope for in Carmel property. $335,000. 625-0300.

SPACE, LIGHT & POOL! On a sunny 1.3 acre hillside site, amid graceful trees & a magnificent oak is this spacious older home, in desirable Rancho Rio Vista area. Bookcases flank the stone fireplace in the living room, enhanced by custom lighting & window wall that opens onto the pool terrace through a portico. Similar access to the pool area is from the dining room & hallway to the master suite. The 4th bedroom & bath can be used as a private den or cabana for the pool. The separate second-story guest quarters, with private patio & entrance, includes used brick fireplace, wet bar & cathedral ceiling. $535,000. 625-4111.

PACIFIC GROVE

NEW ON THE MARKET! A cozy older home, located on a lovely corner lot, set back from the sidewalk behind a picket fence and manicured lawn. There is a free-standing fireplace in the living room, 2 bedrooms, 1 bath, a pass-thru kitchen and dining area overlooking the private, fenced sunny patio. Garage. Ideally located within easy walking distance to town and the ocean. $195,000. 625-0300.

CHOICES, CHOICES, CHOICES! There is still time for you to select your own paint, carpet and tile colors for this brand-new home now under construction on a large corner lot. With wood exterior and arched front window and multi-gabled roof, this charming home will offer a view of the bay from the 2nd story. There is a large family room, a fireplace in the living room, 3 bedrooms & 2½ baths. With double-garage, patio, landscaping & sprinklers. Stamped paver driveway. $249,950. 647-7494.

CARMEL VALLEY

CONTRACTOR OWNER-BUILT! High enough for lovely valley views from most rooms and the oversized sun-deck, yet close to shopping, a special home in a beautiful location. Superbly constructed by contractor-owner, with extensive use of used-brick and high open-beam ceilings, this contemporary-styled 3 bedroom, 2½ bath home has a brick fireplace in the spacious living room, wet bar and a fireplace in the family room, formal dining, and an 8'x16' bonus room.
